PEOPLE WANT PRIMARIES SOON

BROOKS MAKES FRIENDS BY STAND ON MATTER

LONG CAMPAIGN IS USELESS

VOTERS RECOGNIZE FACT THAT FIGHT IS PERSONAL.

NO PARTY ISSUES INVOLVED

Hamlin's Paid Workers Would Have Action Deferred as Long as Possible for Obvious Reasons. More Correspondence.

In view of the fact that the County Central committee will meet tomorrow to set the date for the primaries, the political situation is attracting general attention and causing considerable discussion among citizens outside of the ranks of active politicians. That the majority of the people indorse Mr. Brooks' stand for early primaries was evident yesterday from the expressions of opinion heard on every hand. Business and professional men generally recognize the fact that the contest at the primaries is purely a personal one and are unanimous in their conviction that the less time the political situation is kept agitated the better for the Republican party at large, as well as the business interests of the city. The hope was freely expressed yesterday that the primaries would be set for this week, the prevailing opinion being in favor of a short contest.

Brooks' Stand Popular.

The refusal of Mr. Brooks to accept Mr. Hamlin's challenge for a series of platform squabbles, which every one realizes are nothing more or less than copy of Hamlin's great Island plays, has also met with general approval.

One of the enthusiastic Brooks boosters said yesterday:

"The Hamlin people have the money and are willing to spend it. We haven't got it and can't give it away, so, especially in view of the present financial stringency, the situation is a godsend to us."

Even statisticians are beginning to see that the Gazette is probably correct in crediting the actions of the Republican candidate for governor to the desire to keep his many friends. The people of both parties are well known and it is Mr. Brooks' desire to be judged solely upon his record. The people realize that this is the most favorable possible opportunity, and if Mr. Hamlin has been making that an unfortunate.

Mr. Hamlin wrote another letter to Mr. Brooks today in reply to the one published in yesterday morning in which Mr. Brooks refused a public discussion for the second and sufficient reasons. In this Mr. Hamlin tries to show that his pocket book is not so large as has been reported.

Brooks Sends Reply.

In reply to this letter Mr. Brooks sent Mr. Hamlin the following:

March 7, 1908.

Hon. C. A. Hamlin, Colorado Springs, Colo.:

My Dear Sir: I have your letter of March 7, replying to mine, which was published this morning.

I regret that you seem to persistently misapprehend and misstate my position. For further elaboration of it I consider unnecessary. I am perfectly willing that the people should judge between us.

DEATH ROLL IS STILL GROWING

TOTAL NUMBER SCHOOL HOUSE FIRE VICTIMS 174.

SEVERAL BURNED TO ASHES

MORE THAN TWENTY BODIES NOT YET IDENTIFIED.

PUBLIC FUNERAL TOMORROW

Remains of Unidentified Children Meeting Death in Collinwood Disaster to Be Buried in Tract Bought by Village—Monument May Be Erected.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 7.—The total number of dead, as a result of the burning of the Lakeview school in Collinwood last Wednesday is now thought to be 174. Of this number the bodies of 167 have been found. The bodies of six other children are believed to have been burned to ashes. This is the opinion of the village officials, who have come to what is supposed to be a complete list of the missing.

The list was increased early today by the death of Glen Barber, 10 years of age, who succumbed to injuries sustained when he leaped from the second story of the doomed building while his schoolmates rushed headlong into the flames in the lower hallway.

Of the bodies recovered 147 have been identified. The last identification was established late today, when the body of Richard Kelly, the 10-year-old son of Walter Kelly, marine editor of the Cleveland Leader, was picked from the ruins. His mother was able to complete the identification by means of stitches she had worked about a buttonhole on a garment of the boy's and a scrap of cloth found on the body.

Day of Funerals.

This was another day of funerals. The last services were held simultaneously in 11 homes and in the latter four [illegible] bodies and in the latter [illegible] individual funerals were held in nearly two score of homes. Throughout the day about 70 bodies were carried [illegible] More than 10 were taken [illegible] Many will be buried [illegible]

At the same time the public schools will be open, memorial services will be held in all of the city schools in Cleveland. At that hour, also, all the church bells in Collinwood will be tolled simultaneously.

The body of Miss Grace Fiske, one of the four teachers who gave their lives to save their pupils, was buried this afternoon near the spot where the unidentified will be buried next Monday. The body of Miss Weiler, the other teacher who met death with her school children, has not been recovered. Twice it was thought [illegible] body had been

FAVORS POSTAL BANKS

POSTMASTER GENERAL MEYER AIRS HIS VIEWS.

Appears Before Subcommittee of Senate. Bills by Senators Carter Knox and Burkett Considered.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Bills to establish postal savings banks, introduced by Senators Carter, Knox and Burkett, were today considered by a subcommittee of the Senate committee on [illegible] Bankhead and Clay. Postmaster General Meyer was before the subcommittee and outlined his views on the subject.

Postmaster General Meyer stated to the committee that while the Knox bill was drawn in his department, he was not wedded to that measure and was very ready to approve whatever of the provisions to be taken from both the Burkett and Carter bills.

The committee and Mr. Meyer were agreed on the plan for placing the funds to be secured by the postal savings bank in the various national banks of the country, at a rate of interest sufficiently large to pay depositors 2 per cent and to defray all attendant expenses.

Speaking today of the chances of securing action on this bill, Senator Carter, Chairman of the subcommittee, said:

"I have no doubt the Senate will pass a bill embodying the postal savings principle."

There will be further meetings to discuss the measure.

WU TING FANG TALKS

CHINA'S REPRESENTATIVE ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON.

Is Enthusiastic Over Future of Home Country. Will Soon Be Among the World Powers.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Minister Wu Ting Fang, who has returned to the United States as China's diplomatic representative, after several years absence, arrived in Washington tonight.

The minister arrived at the Union station at about 7 o'clock and was met by the Chinese legation staff and driven to the legation where he received the representatives of the press. As of old he was the interviewer, particularly when the questions addressed to him seemed to approach the subject of the present trouble his country is having with Japan over the seizure of the Tatsu Maru on the charge of smuggling into China for the supposed benefit of revolutionists. In fact, he has changed very little. He appeared to be just as anxious to absorb information and just as keen to raise an issue with those who undertook to satisfy his appetite for news. After the subject of the seizure of the Japanese steamer had been brought up a number of times, Minister Wu finally said that he had been traveling so long that he knew little about the controversy, but he did not believe the situation to be as serious as it had been represented in the press. He declared his intention of awaiting definite information from his government before discussing the question.

There was one subject the minister discussed willingly, and that was the advancement that is being made in China. He said that if he had not been there himself he could not conceive of the progress that has been made in the last decade and especially the last four or five years. The world does not realize it, he said, and cannot know that the nation is alert in a truly modern way. He thought his country would take rank with the most powerful nations within a short time.

Those expressions were interspersed among his questions and were used chiefly to circumvent the curiosity shown by his questioners as to what China is likely to do in regard to Japanese commercial aggression, and the demands of the latter government in regard to the Tatsu Maru case. Plainly, the inference was that he expects his government to take a firm stand on all of these questions.

Minister Wu Ting Fang said he would call on Secretary Root at once with a view of having his credentials presented to President Roosevelt as early as possible.

GOMPERS IS ALARMED

FEARS LABOR WILL SUFFER AT HANDS OF COURTS.

President A. F. of L. Calls Meeting of Executive Council to Take Action on Matter.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The [illegible] pending [illegible] of the supreme court of the United States affecting labor organizations, has led President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor to issue a call for a meeting of the executive council of the federation in this city the latter part of the week, beginning March 16. The call expresses the hope that the executive officers of the International Trade Union of America will meet with the executive council on Wednesday, March 18, "there and then to consult and take such action as the importance and merits of the subject herein dealt with may be considered and determined on setting forth the rights and demands of labor."

The suggestion is made that it would be most advantageous if two or three of the executive officers of each international union were in attendance at the conference and, under any circumstances, that the international unions shall be represented at least by one executive officer and one or two other representatives, whom executive council shall select.

The call includes: "In the interest of the working people of our country, for the protection of the rights as well as the maintenance and reputation of the trade unions and the labor movement of our country that has done so much for the betterment of conditions of all, I appeal to you, in their name, that your organization may be represented at the conference on Wednesday morning, March 18."

DELIVERS ULTIMATUM

JAPAN WILL GIVE CHINA REASONABLE TIME TO ACT.

Apology for Seizure of Ship Demanded by Japanese—Force Will Likely Not Be Necessary.

PEKIN, March 7.—Japan's ultimatum in the case of the Japanese Tatsu Maru, was presented to the head of the Chinese foreign board yesterday, and today the board has the matter under consideration. The Tatsu Maru was seized off Macao on February 7 by Chinese custom cruisers on the charge that her cargo of arms and ammunition was intended for Chinese revolutionists, although consigned to a merchant of that place.

The steamer is now being held at Whampoa on the Canton river. The irreducible minimum of Japanese claims is the restoration of the steamer as well as of her cargo and the payment of a full indemnity.

Action is demanded within a "reasonable time." In case of default or postponement Japan, according to the terms of her ultimatum, will "take immediate action." Japan expects a reply by tomorrow. She will not tolerate China's offers to investigate the case, she insists upon an apology for the hauling down of the Japanese flag on the Tatsu Maru and she will not accept mediation, affirming that China is in error and that the facts are incontrovertible.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to China, in delivering the ultimatum made reference to Japan's sympathy for China in the matter of the contraband traffic in arms, and explained that China could not expect mediation so long as she did not admit the participation of the Portuguese.

TOKIO, March 7.—"Japan will not resort to force in connection with the seizure of the steamer Tatsu unless compelled to do so by the action of China."

This statement was given to the Associated Press correspondent today by a high authority in the foreign office, who continuing, said:

"We propose to use the utmost patience and fully understand the difficulty the central government of China has in dealing with viceroys, who possess extensive constitutional powers. It is quite apparent that the viceroy of Canton acted hastily in relying upon information which stated that the Tatsu was engaged in smuggling arms. He conceived therefore that he had a right to seize the vessel when the facts show that the vessels papers, including a manifest of arms consigned to regular forts in China in Macao were entirely legal. A representative of the firm at Macao boarded the vessel accompanied by the Portuguese authorities, before her seizure by a Chinese vessel. She was undoubtedly then in Portuguese territorial waters. The claim of Japan that this is a clear case of violation of her national rights and an insult to the flag was proved by the Chinese themselves in offering to restore the ship, together with a further promise received today to reprimand the officials who lowered the Japanese flag. Notwithstanding this, while we are determined not to concede what we believe is proper, but to ultimately enforce our demands should China refuse to listen to reason, the world may rest assured that Japan will not act hastily, but will weigh her future actions with the utmost deliberation."

This interview was given after a cabinet meeting and conferences. Foreign Minister Hayashi said later to the Associated Press correspondent that he had reason to believe that it was then determined not to immediately reinforce cruiser Idzumi now at Canton, but that the Idzumi, which was used as a training vessel, would remain there a few days longer.

Today's advices from Pekin contain an offer to punish officials connected with the seizure, and also a statement from Yuan-Shi-Kai that he desired further time for consideration of the Japanese demands. This will be granted by the Japanese government, and it is confidently believed that an agreement will finally be reached between the viceroy of Canton and the central government.

The Chinese minister at Tokio held a lengthy conference with Baron Chinda, vice minister of the foreign office, this morning. During the session of the cabinet, the Chinese minister first contended that because Portugal held Macao waters under treaty, therefore the waters remained actually under Chinese sovereignty. Later, however, the minister withdrew this contention when instances were quoted of other leases, those of Wei-hai-Wei and Kiao-Chow elsewhere cited. The foreign office does not expect any further developments for a few days, the only points remaining undeciding being the restoration of the arms which Japan continues to demand, also raising the Japanese flag on the Tatsu with appropriate ceremony.

Says an old lawyer: Use your fist in the justice court, your brains in the district court, and some one else's brain in the supreme court.

ROBBERS PUT UP FIGHT

RESIST POSSE OF FARMERS IN NEW JERSEY.

Escape After Blowing Up Postoffice With Dynamite, but Are Later Surrounded in Woods.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 7.—A pitched battle between farmers and three robbers, in which two of the latter were wounded, followed the daring robbery early today of the postoffices at Pedricktown and Bridgeport, about thirty miles south of this city. The three men were captured.

The robbers first appeared at Pedricktown shortly after midnight and stole a team from a livery stable. They then went to the postoffice, blew open the safe and stole $250 in money and stamps. The force of the explosion wrecked the building and the place took fire. The robbers then fled with the team.

Before the flames were extinguished the building was damaged to the extent of about $2,000. While some of the people were battling with flames the others organized a posse to capture the robbers. The men, however, escaped.

Two hours later they appeared at Bridgeport, 8 miles from Pedricktown. It was nearly 3 o'clock when they attacked the postoffice at Bridgeport. The family of William Brown occupied the upper portion of the building. The robbers forced an entrance and inserted a charge of nitroglycerine in the safe which almost wrecked the building.

Brown rushed down stairs with a revolver. When he reached the postoffice he was confronted by the three robbers who leveled their revolvers at him and ordered him to retreat upstairs.

The robbers then packed up stamps to the amount of $800, took $50 in cash and left in the direction of Woodbury. Mrs. Brown in the meantime had telephoned to the Woodbury police, and as the trio drove into that town they were hailed by a policeman. The robbers drove the team on a sidewalk and all three opened fire. The policeman shielded himself behind a tree and returned the fire.

During the fusillade the men retreated and finally got away, going toward Wenonah, abandoning the team and leaving a trail of blood. A posse was organized and the desperadoes were traced to Wenonah, where trace of them was lost.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning two men carrying a third, were seen at Wenonah and within a short time a score of farmers, well armed, gave chase and soon had them penned in the woods near by. Both sides opened fire. One of the robbers fell and the second threw up his hands and surrendered. The third man held his ground for some time, but fled further into the woods.

The wounded man and the one who surrendered were taken into custody and locked up in the Woodbury jail. The third man was finally captured two hours later. One of the men, William Mellor, had his face literally filled with buckshot. The other injured man is not expected to recover.

PREPARE FOR RETURN TRIP

Vessels of Big Fleet Will Reach Atlantic by Way of Suez Canal. Conferences at Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Now that it has been practically determined by the president that the battleship fleet shall return to the Atlantic by way of Suez, the near approach of the fleet to its original destination—the California coast—has made it necessary for the naval officials to arrange the details of the itinerary for the homeward movement.

Already several conferences have been held on this subject between President Roosevelt and Secretary Metcalf, Admiral Pillsbury, chief of the navigation bureau, and Admiral Cowles of the equipment bureau, the latter being specially charged with the duty of coaling the fleet.

The last conference, held yesterday, was intended to place Secretary Metcalf in possession of full information as to what had been accomplished by the bureau chiefs in preparation for the return cruise. He was perfectly satisfied with the result. Admiral Cowles has already dispatched large stores of coal to the Hawaiian islands and to Manila, and he has further ascertained just how much fuel he can obtain at Port Said and the price he will have to pay for it. This is as far as he could go in the absence of official orders to make purchases.

It is the duty of Admiral Pillsbury to prepare these orders and he has already, after consultation with his assistants in the navigation bureau, been able to frame them and lay them before the president. So it is expected that in the course of a few days the formal orders will issue and immediately all the plans that have been so carefully worked out for the fleet's return movements will be put into execution.

The principal object is the position of the ships in the arrival in Asian waters, for while it is reasonably certain that some of them will be sent to Japan, it is not known whether the movement in that direction will be general or confined to about four representative ships.

WILL BE OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Investigation of Charges Against Members House Naval Committee to Begin First of Week.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—The sessions of the special House committee appointed yesterday to investigate Representative Lilley's charges of corruption in connection with submarine legislation will be open to the public. The committee today held its second meeting and completed its organization.

Chairman Boutell stated that the inquiry will be begun at the next meeting on Monday and daily sessions probably would be held thereafter. In addition he said: "As yet the committee has before it no allegations on which to act. The course to be taken must be determined largely by Mr. Lilley himself. I presume our first step will be to call on him for a presentation of his charges and when they shall have been laid before the committee, we shall be in a position to shape our course."

SOLDIERS LEAVE GOLDFIELD

Nevada Gold Camp Now Protected by Local and State Police.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Mar. 7.—The United States troops that have been in Goldfield for three months evacuated the camp today and turned the responsibility of maintaining peace in the Goldfield district over to the local police authorities and the Nevada state police. The departing forces consisted of 114 men and five officers.

Several squads of state police arrived in Goldfield this week and established local headquarters in a building in the center of town. The district is peaceful, as the strike was practically declared off this week.

INCREASE IN RATES

Independent Order of Foresters Will Rescale Charges to Members.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 7.—When the supreme court of the Independent Order of Foresters meets in June, it will ratify an increase in rates and a rescaling of charges to members; dating to 1909, that will materially affect 200,000 members of the order.

The new members will be put on the scale of charges of the national congress fraternal table, which will be an increase over the raise in rates put in force by the I. O. of F. in 1899.

The most striking change will be that affecting present charges to the older members that came into the order prior to 1898. They will be asked to pay either in a lump or in another way, enough to bring them up to date in comparison with what the rates charged for at their age by the order are now.

Those who cannot pay the increased rate will have the face value of their policy correspondingly decreased.

NICKEL ORE IS FOUND

SAMPLES OF FIND ARE SENT TO WASHINGTON.

Return Shows Rock Found in Idaho to Contain $400 in Nickel and $82 in Gold and Silver.

WALLACE, Idaho, March 7.—A ledge of good size, carrying values in gold and silver, and also high values in nickel, an ore exceedingly rare in the United States, has been encountered on the property owned by Thomas Gonyea, near Lane. Mr. Gonyea was in the city a short time ago from Lane and exhibited some samples of the ore.

Samples of the ore were sent to the mineralogical department of the government at Washington, D. C., by Mr. Gonyea, and he states that the report received from that department gave values of $400 a ton in the nickel, together with values of $82 a ton in gold and silver, there being about four ounces of silver and thirty ounces of gold to the ton. The report likewise stated that like ore had previously been found only in Russia.

The ore body where Mr. Gonyea is working it now is six feet wide. The face of the tunnel is 400 feet in from the portal and a depth of 200 feet has been attained. By continuing the drift it is estimated that a depth of 1,000 feet will be gotten.

"I have worked the claims for the past six years," said Mr. Gonyea, "and have spent an average of $1,000 a year in development. The ore was struck on the Black Jack claim.

There are three claims in the Goldfield district over to the local police authorities and the Nevada state police. The departing forces consisted of 114 men and five officers.

Several squads of state police arrived in Goldfield this week and established local headquarters in a building in the center of town. The district is peaceful, as the strike was practically declared off this week.

INCREASE IN RATES

Independent Order of Foresters Will Rescale Charges to Members.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 7.—When the supreme court of the Independent Order of Foresters meets in June, it will ratify an increase in rates and a rescaling of charges to members; dating to 1909, that will materially affect 200,000 members of the order.

The new members will be put on the scale of charges of the national congress fraternal table, which will be an increase over the raise in rates put in force by the I. O. of F. in 1899.

The most striking change will be that affecting present charges to the older members that came into the order prior to 1898. They will be asked to pay either in a lump or in another way, enough to bring them up to date in comparison with what the rates charged for at their age by the order are now.

Those who cannot pay the increased rate will have the face value of their policy correspondingly decreased.

Do You Like Honest, Square Dealing?

Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines are put out under the belief that publicity is the best possible guaranty of merit, and that the most intelligent people generally want to know what they take into their stomachs, whether it be as food, drink or medicine. Although it was a bold step to take, and quite out of the usual practice of makers of proprietary medicines, yet Dr. Pierce, some time ago, decided to publish broadcast and on all his bottle-wrappers all the ingredients entering into the composition, or make-up, of his celebrated family medicines. A square deal is therefore assured every one using his medicines, for one knows exactly what he or she is paying for when purchasing them, since every ingredient is published in plain English on the bottle-wrappers and the correctness of the same attested under solemn oath. These several ingredients are selected from among the very best known to medical science for the cure of the various diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

The most eminent and leading medical teachers and writers of all the several schools of practice have endorsed each of the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines in the strongest possible terms. The makers of Dr. Pierce's medicines believe that intelligent people do not wish to open their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulp down whatever is presented to them, either in the way of food, drink or medicine, without knowing something of the properties and harmless character of the agents employed. They believe that health is too sacred a heritage to be experimented with, and that people should not take medicines of the composition of which they are kept in ignorance. Dr. Pierce's medicines are made wholly from the roots of plants found growing in the depths of our American forests. They are so compounded that they cannot do harm in any case, even to the most delicate woman or child. By open publicity Dr. Pierce has taken his medicines out of the list of secret nostrums, of doubtful merit, and made them REMEDIES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. They are therefore, in a class all by themselves, being absolutely and in every sense non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

There is a badge of honesty on every bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the full list of its ingredients duly attested as correct under solemn oath.

No other medicines put up for general use through druggists can make claim to any such distinction, and none other than Dr. Pierce's medicines have any such professional endorsement of their ingredients. Such professional endorsement should have far more weight with the afflicted than any amount of lay, or non-professional, endorsement, or testimonials.

Of course, the exact proportion of each ingredient used in Dr. Pierce's medicines as well as the working formula or manner of preparing the same, and the specially devised apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may be fully protected from such unprincipled imitators as might be piratically inclined.

The preparation of these medicines without the use of a drop of alcohol, so generally employed and yet so harmful, in the long run, to most invalids when its use is long continued, even in small doses, cost Dr. Pierce several years of careful study and labor, with the aid of skilled pharmacists and chemists to assist him. Naturally, he does not care to give away his scientific and exact processes for preparing these medicines, but he does want to deal in the most open manner with all his patrons and patients, and under this frank, open and honest way of dealing, they may know exactly what they are taking when using his medicines.

What Do They Cure? This question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative and healing way upon all the mucous lining surfaces as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in effecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

PEOPLE WANT PRIMARIES SOON

[illegible] public [illegible] what we [illegible] and such [illegible] that they may [illegible]

With regard to the primaries, I believe that every consideration of public and party welfare makes an early determination of this controversy desirable and, while I should not urge anything unreasonable or unfair, a step that would result in anyone being deprived of a reasonable opportunity to cast his vote, I trust the committee will not delay the determination of the matter.

Yes, there's your campaign fund, while I was in the east, and when I returned in November, I found that workers were actively employed in your interests.

No such arbitrary action was made early in December, whereby I might fill your place by position.

Your headquarters were open fully two weeks before mine, and your workers were busy, free to make use of this fact as an evidence of your greater activity. It would seem, therefore, that in point of public trust and in devotion of your campaign, you have the advantage, and I do not see where you would have cause of complaint.

I very much regret that we could not agree upon certain simple principles, which I think would have been advantageous to both, but since that is not the case, I must follow the course which seems to me proper and right in the premises.

Very truly yours,
FRANKLIN E. BROOKS.

Hamlin's Letter.

Mr. Hamlin's letter of yesterday to which the above is a reply follows:

March 7, 1908.

Hon. Franklin E. Brooks, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Dear Sir: Were it not for the fact that your letter in The Gazette accentuates the instructions of that paper to the effect that I am endeavoring to secure control of the coming Republican convention by the use of money, I would find nothing to answer in it, for, as I understand the matter, you decline:

First—To consider the preference of the people as expressed in the coming primaries as final and binding in case the direction question is submitted, and,

Second—To meet me in joint debate for the purpose of discussing the issues on which our respective claims are based.

As to the use of money, you know and The Gazette must know that I am not a man of large means, and I wish emphatically to say that the report that I have a large campaign fund is absolutely without foundation in fact. No one deprecates the use of money in politics more than do I, and when corruptly used, it strikes at the very foundations of government. Even to meet those expenses which are necessary and legitimate in a political campaign, carries me serious embarrassment, and it was partially for this reason that I asked you to meet me in joint discussion, believing that we could get our views on vital issues (and there are vital issues in this controversy) before a maximum number of people at a minimum of expense. However, this embarrassment will not shake me in my determination to demand that the issues involved be fully considered before the vote is cast. I appreciate the fact that the sensational matter has been brought up at this time, but it is up and the people have a right to know where we stand. If they are not interested in the matter, then indeed the present commotion is unnecessary and almost absurd, as it would go to show that neither of us are taken seriously in this matter. I apprehend that a request from both of us to our friends on the county central committee to defer the primaries for a sufficient time to enable us to meet in joint debate would be complied with, and that same could be arranged so as not to interfere with your previous engagements.

However, as your refusal is based on other grounds, in addition to the above, I shall take it as final unless I shall hear from you further.

Be assured that no personalities will be indulged in during the campaign with my consent, for I desire that there shall be no sore spots when the end is reached, as our party might be injured thereby. Yours truly,

C. C. HAMLIN

Other Correspondence.

Other correspondence between the two candidates not heretofore published in The Gazette is as follows:

March 5, 1908.

Hon. C. C. Hamlin, District Attorney, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Dear Sir: In view of the approaching primary elections in this county and the keen interest which we both have in the issue of them, I beg to submit a few suggestions which I think will serve our common interest. I do this in the full assurance and confidence that you are as anxious as I that the popular will may be expressed as freely and fully as possible and without fear or restraint.

Apparently by common consent, these primaries are regarded as having a very important bearing upon the attitude of this county with reference to our respective desires. This is in accordance with my own earnest wish, and the great activity of your friends in preparation seems to warrant that it is your own wish or intention. I would suggest, therefore, that we join in requesting that the central committee, when it shall be called, adopt in substance the following regulations for the conduct of these primaries:

(1) That in addition to the election of delegates to the county convention, who may be favorable to one or the other of us, the voters be asked and allowed to express their choice between us directly by ballot.

(2) That such ballot, both as to delegates and choice for senator, be a secret ballot, cast as nearly as may be in the manner provided by law for the election of state and county officers;

(3) That each party be accorded such [illegible] the calling to order [illegible] members of our own party.

(4) That the employ[illegible] so-called watchers who may be allowed within a [illegible] of any polling place be regulated by the committee.

(5) That the central committee make [illegible] as may be necessary to carry out the intent and purport of these suggestions and to prevent and protect voting by unqualified electors.

(6) That we jointly solicit the [illegible] assistance in the [illegible] of these suggestions.

These recommendations are intended to cast no reflection whatever upon anyone. They only seek to be avoided [illegible] to any political controversy, and the purposes sought to be attained are in the line of the most intelligent [illegible] as to how urged and [illegible].

I have had this subject carefully considered and can see [illegible] nothing in [illegible] which is not [illegible] fair and [illegible] to all.

I trust that this letter may be acceptable to the spirit in which it is sent [illegible], and that I may have a very early [illegible].

Very truly yours,
FRANKLIN E. BROOKS
Query by Hamlin.

March 6, 1908.

Hon. Franklin E. Brooks, City.

My Dear Sir: Your favor of the 5th inst. was delivered at my house late last night and I hasten to reply. Before I can intelligently answer your said communication, I must know what you desire and expect and are willing to have FINALLY DETERMINED and SETTLED by the coming primaries through the carrying out of the proposal made by you. If you will fully and clearly define your position in this regard, I will gladly answer in detail the various propositions set forth in your said communication.

Very truly yours,
C. C. HAMLIN

Brooks Writes Another.

March 7, 1908.

Hon. C. C. Hamlin, Colorado Springs, Colo.

My Dear Sir: I have yours of March 6, in reply to mine of the 5th instant.

In my original letter, I stated to you as clearly as I could what my purpose was or this behalf. I think you will agree with me that it would be quite impossible for either of us to express an opinion in advance with regard to a final and absolute determination of any controversy at this time. My position is now as it at all times has been on this question. I thoroughly believe that the voters in this county desire an opportunity for a direct expression, and I desire to facilitate it. In fact, I have approached this question from the standpoint of the voter, rather than that of the candidate.

I may be in error about this, and it is possible at least that the situation might develop in such a way that either one of us would be justified in not considering these primaries final. However, I am very frank to say that the result either one way or the other, unless other conditions intervened which would modify my opinion, would have a practically controlling effect upon my judgment and conduct.

One of the main purposes which I desired to accomplish by my proposition to you, was that involved in the second suggestion. That question would not be affected in any way by the [illegible] as want of quality of the primaries, and I can see no reason for hesitation on that point.

As to the number of the primaries, I have no attitude in the matter.

I trust that this will answer your questions, and I very much hope that you will agree with me on the advisability of giving to the people the opportunity which I think they desire.

With regards, I am,

Very truly yours,
FRANKLIN E. BROOKS

Hamlin's Answer.

March 8, 1908.

Hon. Franklin E. Brooks, City.

My Dear Sir: I cannot but look upon yours of the 5th inst. as an evasion of the question asked of you in mine of the 4th.

Stripped of all surplusage, you propose to ask for a direct expression from the people of this county as to their preference for United States senatorship as between yourself and myself. I ask you how far you will be bound by such an expression? In other words, are you willing to agree that the one receiving the least number of votes shall retire from the contest? In reply to this you say: "The result either one way or the other unless other conditions intervened which would modify my opinion, would have a practically controlling effect upon my judgment and conduct." If this means anything at all, I am at a loss to discover what it is, and unless you are willing to give me a direct answer to my simple question, I shall certainly decline to enter into the arrangement you suggest. A contest of the character of that in which we are engaged should certainly be surrounded by some dignity and it would seem to me that unless your proposal shall carry with it the condition that the will of the people when once expressed shall be binding and controlling upon both of us, then the course suggested by you would render such submission useless and defeat its apparent purpose.

I wish further to say that I am advised that your friends on the central committee will, when that committee meets on Monday next, try to force through a resolution fixing the primaries within the next few days. If this is done I will be forced to the conclusion that instead of desiring a free expression of the will of the people on this question, based upon full information, you are trying to avoid it, for it is manifestly impossible to secure such an expression within so short a time. I hope I am doing no one an injustice in sanctioning this last matter. It is necessary for me to do so in order to say that if such a program is carried through I shall most certainly decline to consider the proposals made by you in yours of the 3d inst., for if same should be agreed upon between us, certainly the fullest opportunity should be allowed for the presentation of our respective claims if they can be called such.

Very truly yours,
C. C. HAMLIN.

BAD WRECK ON BURLINGTON

Train Derailed at Kearney, Mo.—Goes Down Steep Embankment. Several Hurt.

KANSAS CITY, March 7.—Burlington passenger train No. 4, which left Kansas City at 7:30 this morning for Chicago, was derailed at Kearney, Mo., 25 miles north of here, and went over a 15-foot embankment. Twenty persons were injured, four seriously.

The seriously hurt:

J. D. Glydon, Kansas City, horse and mule buyer, head cut and otherwise injured.

R. E. Wilcox, Kansas City, horse buyer, hip broken, hurt internally.

Chappell, young divinity student, studying at Liberty, Mo.

Dr. E. D. Morris, Linneus, Mo., head and hip hurt.

Ben S. Heaton, Liberty, hip wrenched, wrist and nose broken.

A. D. Campbell, Thayer, Kan., head badly hurt.

B. H. Haddock, Liberty, nose broken.

D. H. Huxley, Liberty, hip dislocated.

Three of the injured were young preachers who were on their way from the Liberty college to fill pulpits tomorrow in neighboring towns.

A traveling man from the north, name unknown, unconscious.

None of the other injured was seriously hurt, their injuries consisting mostly of cuts and bruises.

The wrecked train was made up of baggage car, smoker and two coaches. It is an accommodation train that stops at every station between Kansas City and Chicago and was not due in Chicago till Monday morning.

The accident was caused by spreading rails. The train was not running fast and this fact probably prevented more serious results. All but the smoker turned over and went half way down the embankment.

Physicians were sent to the scene from Brookfield and Kearney. The injured were cared for promptly and placed in the smoker until they could be taken to Kearney. There they were picked up by a later train and most of them continued on their journey.

Suit Section

This week really marks the first showing of spring garments. Up to now we have only had a spattering of styles and could hardly call it a showing. We are now pleased to announce that we are ready to show a representative line of medium priced suits, which are strictly up to TODAY in style. Styles approved, modified and very much changed since the earlier spring showing. These garments possess individual styles as we are the exclusive representatives in Colorado Springs of several creators of stylish garments with designs a little different, yet so pleasing to the eye and in strict accordance with Dame Fashion. The material is all of the latest weaves, including Wool Rajah, Panama Cloth, invisible stripes in Voiles, Serges and Panamas, as well as the different plain staple color cloths. The large variety of styles makes it impossible to try and describe any one for price means, most of the styles appear in quantities. With a very few exceptions there are only one of each style. You are not in any danger of meeting your double by purchasing your suit here. Our strongest price range is from $20.00 to $35.00. Also a good representation of cheaper and better suits. A particular striking one is a Panama suit nicely trimmed at $15.00.

There are many worthy innovations in tailorings and accessories happily, however there are no foolish frippleries, such as [illegible] gingerbread cuffs on fancy [illegible] pockets on [illegible] blood and will have the disapproval of all sane dressers

The plain, more conservative things are correct just now viz

Coats will be [illegible] medium length and less form fitting than heretofore the straight back pressed off the seams is quite the proper thing with snappy dressers

[illegible] change will be [illegible] unusual [illegible] giving a long and graceful appearance to the lapels which will [illegible] cut very narrow

[illegible] quite a sentiment against the extreme broad shoulder and they will be constructed narrower than last year the sleeve head will be worked out so as to give a broad effect Well cut broad shoulders have the day

Fine stitchings are a fashionable bluff edges and plain seams being preferable on all fabrics except those actually requiring the reinforcement of double stitching

Fancy pockets and cuff finishes are a thing of the past two regular flap pockets and one and two button openings are quite the correct thing and are soon donned by best dressers Again we find the center vent coming in favor and quite possible in this season out

Single breasted coats of all styles have the preference as the double breasted garment are less popular than ever

Fancy Waistcoats

Will be worn extensively and in many [illegible] patterns but should always be in unison with the coloring of the [illegible] It is impossible to [illegible] the many [illegible] that will be worn this spring

CHARGED WITH INJURING BOY

Harry Emery, 16 Years Old, Arrested on Complaint of Mrs. Georgia Knowlton.

On the charge of having assaulted Clarence Knowlton, the 10-year-old son of Mrs. Georgia Knowlton, 936 North Cedar street, by trampling him under the feet of his horse on Thursday, Harry Emery, 16 years old, son of James Emery, was arrested yesterday by Detectives S. D. Burns and John Patton. To the detectives the young man admitted that he was the person wanted as a result of the injuries alleged to have been sustained by the Knowlton boy, and in defense of his action said that the schoolboys of his beat "bawled" him and he wanted to teach them a lesson.

According to the story told by Clarence Knowlton, the horseman charged upon him when he was on his way to the Columbia school, chased him into a vacant lot and rode his horse over him, inflicting serious injuries while he lay prostrate on the ground. The boy claims to have been knocked unconscious and seriously hurt.

The Emery boy's parents live in what is known as the Waterman residence, near Austin Bluffs, north of this city, and the youth is said to frequently ride his horse into the city. It was on one of these trips that the alleged assault is said to have been committed. The boy was released on the recognizance of the father. The case will probably be brought up in the juvenile court.

LE ROSSIGNOL WILL LECTURE

Has Agreed to Speak at Ethical Conference in May—Dr. Corwin Also on Program.

Professor J. E. Le Rossignol of Denver university, will be one of the speakers at the religious and ethical conference to be held at Colorado College next May. Professor Le Rossignol is at the head of the department of economics in the Denver institution and a man of extensive experience, with firsthand knowledge of social and economic conditions in other countries as well as this. He has consented to present before the conference "Some of the Problems of the Modern Community," with particular reference to the physical, mental and moral education of workingmen.

The above paper will be discussed by Dr. E. W. Corwin of Pueblo, chief surgeon for the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Dr. Corwin is able to speak from years of experience in close touch with the problems of workingmen, and is thoroughly convinced that the time is ripe for an active, determined consideration of the great social and industrial problems of the modern community.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS AT M'CRACKEN & HUBBARD'S

Improvements costing several hundred dollars and resulting in almost doubling of the floor space, has just been completed by McCracken & Hubbard, the well-known furniture dealers. This progressive firm has been compelled to enlarge their present quarters, owing to the increase of business and the necessity for more room to display the large stock.

A balcony has been built around the entire floor, which will be used exclusively for the display of upholstered goods and parlor suites. This firm is already showing an unusually large stock of new spring furniture, and when several carloads now en route will have one of the largest and most complete stock in the city.

The next open meeting of the El Paso County Horticultural society will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Court house. F. W. Holman will read a paper on "Preparing for Spring," which will be followed by an open discussion.

LENTEN ORGAN RECITALS

A Series of Six Organ Recitals to Be Given by Clarence D. Sears.

During Lent the well-known organist of Grace church, Clarence D. Sears, will give a series of six organ recitals, on Wednesday afternoons at 4:30 p. m., in Grace church, assisted by the most prominent soloists of the city. These recitals are free to the public and all are invited to attend. Mr. Sears has been organist of Grace church for the last six years, and has given a series of recitals each winter which have always attracted large audiences, showing that his work as organist has been appreciated, not only by the members of the congregation, but by the musical people of this city. Mr. Sears will be assisted by A. D. Aitken, basso, who is well known in Colorado Springs as a singer of talent. M. O. Barnes, the well-known director of the Opera House orchestra, will play a violin solo at the first recital. This will be Mr. Barnes' first appearance in solo work for some time, and it will give a number of his admirers a chance to hear him in the style of music he likes best.

Following is the program to be rendered Wednesday, March 11:

Organ Solo—
(a) "Lied" ..... Gaston M. Dethier
(b) "Menuetto" ..... Berthold Tours
Violin Solo—
"Adagio Pathetique" ... Benjamin Godard
Organ Solo—
"Offertoire" ..... King Hall
(During this number an offering will be taken for the music fund.)
Bass Solo—
"O God, Have Mercy" ... Felix Mendelssohn
(From Saint Paul.)
Organ Solo—
(a) "Pastorale" ..... Clarence D. Sears
(b) "Festive March in D" ... Henry Hiland

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

MUCH INTEREST IN EL PASO MEETING TOMORROW.

Bernard Supporters Seems to Hold Balance of Power and Declare There Is "Nothing to It."

One of the bitterest fights that has ever been waged for the control of a mining company will culminate tomorrow afternoon in a battle of proxies at the annual meeting of the El Paso Consolidated Mining company, to be held in the offices of the company in the Mining Exchange building in this city. For several months Allen L. Burris, a director of the company, has waged a war of bulletins and circulars. President S. S. Bernard and his board of directors.

Feel Sure of Victory.

"President Bernard has the control of the meeting locked up in his safe," said W. H. Spurgeon, of Spurgeon & Cassidy, attorneys for the Bernard faction. "There will be nothing to the meeting except the counting of the proxies. Victory is certain. If every share of the 2,450,000 outstanding is voted, we will still have more than a comfortable margin over and above the necessary votes."

Directors and officers of the company are equally as confident that Burris will be defeated.

Burris Also Confident.

"The race is now neck and neck," said Allen L. Burris yesterday. "Ten days ago, I had the lead by a quarter of a million shares, but the other side has been doing a great deal of hustling and bringing a great deal of money and pressure to bear. However, I have proxies enough to keep the present management from control. There will be a large floating vote, probably as much as 250,000 shares, and this I expect to have a determining influence on the final result. If the statements of the Bernard faction that it has at the present time more than a majority of the 2,450,000 shares is true, then more stock will be voted at the meeting than is at present outstanding."

Fires Final Gun.

As a parting shot in the Burris campaign, Max Palm of Cincinnati has just sent out a circular letter to stockholders of the company refuting the reports that he had deserted Burris. In his letter he quotes figures to show that S. S. Bernard, George Bernard, J. H. Avery, Henry Bernard and W. S. Jackson have disposed of 236,422 shares since the stock sold at $1.82½, by which he claims that they made close on to $425,000 at the expense of the other stockholders. This letter is accompanied by another from W. P. Wycoff, now in Lowell, Ariz., submitted in verification of Burris' statements regarding the flooding of the mine. Wycoff, who installed the pump, claims that the workmen were instructed to drill into the phonolite, when they were certain such procedure would flood the mine.

The Bernard Slate.

S. S. Bernard will probably be a candidate for re-election as president, while Allen L. Burris himself will be his opponent. The Bernard ticket, as announced to stockholders, will be E. J. Eaton, J. H. Avery, J. N. Beatty, A. Kemple, George Bernard, S. S. Bernard and William Bainbridge. This is the directorate now in power, with the exception of Kemple and Bainbridge, who are proposed as the successors of Burris and Mahoney. Burris has refused to announce his ticket, which he says he will spring as a surprise at the meeting.

Charges of almost every nature have been made by Burris, and it has only been within the last month that the remaining six directors, faithful to the Bernard management, have taken up the fight and begun an active campaign to secure proxies. The outstanding stock of the company totals 2,450,000 shares, of which, between 2,000,000 and 2,100,000 shares will probably be voted at the meeting tomorrow. Both factions claim victory although Burris does not appear so confident as his opponent.

Some of the Charges.

Burris has been making the fight single-handed, backed by his own and his mother's stock. He began six months ago and since that time has been issuing bulletins full of charges of dishonesty, mismanagement, incompetency and neglect against the Bernard regime. He has charged President S. S. Bernard with flooding the mine below the 800-foot level, with manipulating the stock market, with delaying the construction of the drainage tunnel, with so arranging the terms of the leases as to favor his personal friends, and with consistently neglecting the affairs of the company.

Lined up on Bernard's side have been six of the seven directors: S. S. Bernard, J. H. Avery, E. J. Eaton, J. N. Beatty and J. W. Mahoney. These directors, in a comprehensive statement issued a month ago, met the charges made by Burris with a series of signed statements. The fight for proxies has been bitterly waged and has been marked by many features of interest.

James F. Burns, a figure in many fights for control of mining companies, has not been in the limelight in this fight yet. He secured the ownership of 70,000 shares of Burris stock, given as collateral on a loan. It is not known to which side he will throw his support, but it is thought that the stock will go to Burris.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WILL TAKE CHARGE.

Meeting Called to Consider Plans for Carrying Project to Successful Conclusion.

The executive committee of the National Letter Carriers' [illegible] taken charge of the project of the National home and association in this city. Announcement of this action, which was approved by Brooks Irione of this [illegible] yesterday afternoon in a letter from Wilson K. Kay, president of the association. This followed a meeting of the executive board in Atlantic City last week, and is the first step in an active campaign that is to be pushed toward the realization of the plan.

Brooks Irione, who has been the most booster for the home, asked the aid of the executive board in raising a fund of $50,000. Several large [illegible] toward the fund have already been made, but he is desirous that plans be laid and active work started looking toward the raising of a large fund and the securing of an adequate appropriation at the St. Paul convention in 1909. The executive committee will have the first [illegible] under consideration plans to this end.

Mr. Irione, who is a member of the executive committee, will leave the first of June for a six weeks visit in the east, during which he will attend a meeting of the executive board to be held for the purpose of considering the plans for the home. As the several important campaigns that the board has had on its hands for some time past, such as the securing of an increase in the wage scale, have now been satisfactorily adjusted, the board will now be able to devote its entire attention to the home project.

ELATED OVER BASEBALL PROSPECTS UNDER SELEE.

Denver Promoters Will Inspect Sites for Local Park Today.—State League Prospects Bright.

With the announcement made in The Gazette last week that Frank G. Selee will manage the Colorado Springs team in the Colorado State league and with the assurance that a team here is a certainty, great interest has been aroused among local fans. That the team will be welcomed is certain, and the hearty support of the baseball loving public is pledged to the team that is to be organized to represent this city in the circuit.

Selee's ability and reputation is so great that the news that he is back of the team is enough to assure its being well received by local fans. That he will sign a number of players that will give Colorado Springs rattling good ball is certain. Harry Hahn, who has been untiring in his efforts to secure a ball team for this city, will be Selee's right hand man here, and should Selee's health prevent his traveling with the team, Hahn will act as road manager.

Local men interested in the club yesterday made another inspection of the sites. Denver promoters will arrive here this morning and will visit the sites, discuss plans for the team and go over the prospects.

[illegible] Nevins returned yesterday from Trinidad says that the town is crazy over baseball and is highly enthused over the prospects of the state league for the coming season. Captain Webster has signed up a strong aggregation for the coming season and Trinidad will be in line for the championship. It is planned to unfurl the pennant symbolic of last year's championship as one of the early games.

In Denver, the Colorado Iron Workers, under the captaincy of "Pete" Birkendahl, are already hard at work and promise to be on the firing line all season. The second Denver team is also getting in shape.

GRAMMAR BALL SEASON OPENS

First Four Games of Schedule Arouse Interest Among Public School Pupils.

Great interest attended the opening games in the Grammar School Baseball league, played on Friday and yesterday between teams in both the first and second divisions. More than 200 loyal "rooters" saw the various games, showing that school spirit has been aroused even among the pupils in the grammar schools.

On Friday afternoon the first division games were played, resulting as follows: Garfield, 14; Steele, 5, and Columbia, 18; Lowell, 11.

The games in the second division, composed of boys over 15 years of age, were played yesterday, with the following result: Steele, 12; Lilley, 1, and Columbia, 9; Lowell, 8.

The league is organized under the auspices of the Anti-Cigarette league, the schedule extending for the next 16 weeks and including two games on every Friday and two on every Saturday.

WHITE SOX BEAT LOS ANGELES

Team No. 1 Wins First Game on Coast Training Tour.

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 7.—Chicago American team No. 1 defeated Los Angeles today 6 to 2. Five of Chicago's runs were made in the eighth inning. Chicago got 11 hits while Los Angeles secured 10. Both teams made two errors. The White Sox battery was composed of Walsh, White, Smith and Sullivan, while that for Los Angeles was made up of Randolph and Schmidt, Easterly and Hogue.

ARRANGE TRACK MEET

COLORADO COLLEGE PLANS BIG EVENT IN MAY.

Will Extend Invitations to Principal High Schools of State to Compete on Washburn Field

One of the biggest interscholastic track meets in the west this year will be held on Washburn field the latter part of May, when the annual invitation meet given by Colorado College for the high schools of the state will be held. The decision to hold the meet, as stated, has been made by the college authorities, and invitations are to be sent out within a short time to each member of the high schools in the state. It is expected that there will be the best and most representative meet of the season.

While the date has not been definitely fixed, September, May 23, will probably be selected. This date will end all of the track meets in good condition, and it with the outstanding event of what promises to prove a highly successful season in interscholastic track and field athletics.

Since its inception, three years ago, this meet has increased rapidly in popularity, and is now attracts the best [illegible] in the state. Between 100 athletes representing [illegible] 30 schools will compete this year. Besides the banner which goes to the winning team, there will be individual prizes given away. The regular list of athletic, track and field events will comprise the program.

Professor H. F. Smith is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

P. HAGERMAN WINS GOLF CUP

Defeats W. K. Jewett in Final Round for Midsummer Trophy at Country Club.

In the close competition for the midsummer cup on the golf links at the Cheyenne Mountain Country club, the final round was won yesterday by Percy Hagerman. He defeated W. K. Jewett, four up and two to play in a closely contested and interesting match. At the end of the morning's play the score stood all even, Hagerman taking the lead in the afternoon after a hard fight.

The cup has previously been won by J. McK. Forriday and by W. K. Jewett. It was presented to the club by George A. Fowler, and must be won three times for permanent possession. It will be played for again next summer.

TIGERS WIN INITIAL GAME

Defeat High School Nine by Score of 8 to 1 on Washburn Field Diamond.

In the initial baseball game of the year, played yesterday afternoon on Washburn field, Colorado College defeated the High School Terrors by a score of 8 to 1. The two Tiger pitchers, Van Stone and Hyder, proved invincible, the High School lads being unable to touch either for as much as a one-hit. Colorado College will play Cutler Academy next Saturday.

Following is the lineup:

College (8).		High School (1).
Dezbie	1b	Ady
Jones	2b	W. Stovell
Schmid (c)	3b	Bonecraft
Sherry	ss	Friend
Thornell	rf	Whittaker
Wilcox	cf	Finley
Morris	lf	Hyatt
Collins	c	Dixon
Van Stone, Hyder	p	Murphy (c)

Score by innings:

College	1	2	2	0	1	0	1	1	x—8
High School	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0—1

The High School scored its run on a wild throw. The Tigers were held to six hits. Errors were frequent on both sides. Van Stone pitched five, and Hyder three innings.

FIX SCHOLASTIC DATES

SOUTHERN LEAGUE BASEBALL SCHEDULE IS ARRANGED.

Season Opens in Pueblo, April 4, and Closes Here, May 9—Cutler May Make Vacation Trip.

Dates for the baseball games of the southern division of the Colorado interscholastic Baseball league were decided upon yesterday at a meeting of the representatives of the three schools composed in the division, held at Coburn library. The season this year will be earlier than usual, this being the result of the agitation of the University of Colorado and the Colorado College track meets earlier in the season.

The official championship schedule is as follows:

April 4—Cutler vs. Centennial, at Pueblo.

April 11—Cutler vs. C. S. H. S. at Washburn Field.

April 18—C. S. H. S. vs. Centennial, at Pueblo.

April 25—Cutler vs. C. S. H. S. at High School field.

May 2—Cutler vs. Centennial at Washburn field.

June 6 Championship game at Denver.

There are two schools in the northern division and these will settle the championship of that part of the country between themselves, state honors being decided in the game between the northern and southern winners at Denver, on June 6.

Colorado Springs High School was represented at yesterday's meeting by Professor Donald S. Tucker, Cutler Academy by Manager H. H. Whitney and Captain P. Coombs, and Pueblo Centennial High School by Manager Kritz and Captain Acosta.

Cutler Academy may have a trip during the spring vacation this year if negotiations now being conducted by Manager Whitney materialize. He is planning on a trip starting March 30, on which the team would play Pueblo, Minnequa and Canon City. McGowan, who pitched on the Cutler team three years ago, has returned to the school and is expected to prove a star in the box this year.

INDOOR BASEBALL BEGINS

Portland Mill Defeats Golden Cycle and Real Estate Team Wins From Printers.

The opening games on the Indoor Baseball league schedule were played last night at the Y. M. C. A., the Portland mill men defeating the Golden Cycle by a score of 15 to 11 in the class A contest, and the real estate men winning from the printers in class B by a score of 10 to 6.

In the Portland-Golden Cycle game, the latter team played with one instead of eight men and in spite of this handicap put up a good fight. The batting order of the two teams was as follows:

Portland Mill [illegible]

Davis, 2b ... Fuhrer, c
Williamson, ss ... Stevenson, p
[illegible] ... Gentry, 1b
Scott, 3b ... Helm, ss
Huber, p ... Morton, 3b
Shellenberger, c ... Rawson, rf
Whitford, 1b
Hewitt, rf

Score by innings:

Portland [illegible]
Golden Cycle [illegible]

Employes-Stevenson and Scott.

The feature of the real estate-printers game was the work of Davis, the diminutive pitcher of the printers, in making two unassisted double plays. In this game, the real estate men were handicapped by the loss of two players, but nevertheless won out, having had more practice than the printers. The teams batted in the following order:

Real Estate (10).	Printers (6)
Steckel, c	Klopfer, 3b
Carper, p	Jones, p
Williamson, 1b	Smith, 2b
Scott, 3b	Clarke, 1b
Johnson, 2b	Gilchrist, ss
Peyton, ss	Hewitt, rf
Cox, lf	Mitchell, cf

BREAKS RECORDS IN HURDLES

Smithson Races 50 Yards in 0:06 1-5. Columbia Wins Two Mile Relay.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—The feature of the tenth annual meet and games of Georgetown university held here tonight at Convention hall, was a two-mile relay race for the championship of the United States at that distance between teams representing Cornell and Columbia universities. It was cut-and-dried team's race until the last lap when the Cornell runner gradually pulled away from the Columbia man and won by about 20 yards. Time, 9 minutes 29 seconds.

F. C. Smithson of the New York Athletic club in the 50-yard hurdle race broke the American record of 0:06 2-5, held by W. Scarlett of the University of Chicago. Smithson's time was 0:06 1-5. Smithson was second in the 50-yard invitation race which was won by J. A. Hector of the University of Virginia in 0:05 4-5.

MEN SINK WITH COAL FLATS

Three Lives Lost on Monongahela River Due to High Water—Towboat Goes Over Dam.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 7.—Three lives were lost tonight when the towboat Stella Moren, with two flats of coal, went over Dam No. 2, on the Monongahela river, at Port Perry, Pa., and sank in 26 feet of water. The dead:

JOHN CON, engineer.
CHARLES LORAIN, deck hand.
JOHN BUSH, fireman.

The Moren was about to enter the lock when the strong current, due to the high water, swung it around, and before it could be controlled the towboat and flats were swept over the dam and completely wrecked. Cox was caught between the lock wall and the boat and crushed to death. The rest of the crew, numbering ten men, were thrown into the river, but all were rescued except Lorain and Bush, who were not seen after the boat went down. The boat was owned by the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company. The loss is $50,000.

VIENNA, March 7.—Wilhelmina Woessing, the divorced wife of former Archduke Leopold, has been placed in an asylum. The woman recently purchased a revolver with which she threatened to kill her former husband and his brother. Physicians, after an examination declared her insane.

Societies and Clubs

The March meeting of the Colorado Springs Federation of Women's Clubs was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jerome A. Weir on North Weber street. The speaker was Mrs. Sanford Bell of Denver, chairman of the educational committee of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, who delivered an able lecture on the subject of "Moral Education." Mrs. Ida M. Hamilton, president of the federation, made the introductory remarks. Mrs. Bell's lecture was preceded by baritone solo by Dr. Charles G. Woodsey. At the close of the lecture, an opportunity was given to meet Mrs. Bell. Those in the receiving line were Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Bell, Miss Flanburs, Mrs. M. G. Colburn, Mrs. R. H. Davis and Mrs. Frank Baker. The guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. J. L. Hayhaugh, Mrs. H. S. Hawks, Mrs. J. C. St. John and Mrs. G. W. Worth. Presiding tea were Mrs. Frank Cotton and Mrs. W. L. Steele, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Weigert, Mrs. M. P. Yates, Mrs. F. L. Gutmann, Mrs. Dickinson, Mrs. G. W. Dickey and Mrs. H. G. Dunbar.

The second in a course of ten lectures being delivered by Dr. Sanford Bell of Denver, before the Woman's Club of Colorado Springs, was given yesterday afternoon in the San Luis school building. His topic, "Method of Literary Interpretation," gave a wide field for observation and instruction. "To read intelligently and sympathetically one must experience adequate emotion," said the speaker.

Mrs. Perkins' tea will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Gilbert, 2121 North Tejon street.

The Daughters of Veregina will hold their regular meeting Tuesday evening at the G. A. R. hall.

Pythian Sisters of Hermione temple No. 1 will meet in K. P. hall Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members of the degree staff are expected to be present for initiation. Visiting sisters are cordially invited.

Mrs. Gross, 241 North Franklin street, will entertain the East Side W. C. T. U. Wednesday afternoon. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Finney, superintendent of the Sabbath observance committee.

All visiting members of other D. A. R. chapters are invited by the Nebula Pike chapter to attend the reception given by Mrs. M. C. Gile, 1221 North Tejon street, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The Feast of Purim will be celebrated by the Jewish people of Colorado Springs, Sunday evening, March 22 at K. P. hall. An elaborate program has been arranged by a committee composed of Alex. Reibschold, Simon Kranz and William Pfeffer. A feature of the event will be the installation of the following officers of Colorado Springs lodge No. 573, B'nai B'rith: M. Greenberg, president; M. S. Myers, vice president; Max Lurie, monitor; N. Leapheimer, secretary; O. Oppenderfer, treasurer; Charles Pelz, monitor; E. S. Cohen, guardian.

It is somewhat hard to believe that the case-hardened herrings we get in inland towns, used to live in the water.

Fat All My Life, and How I Got Rid of It.

First a captivating plumpness begins to steal upon woman in her twenties. Plumpness is followed by—oh, horrors—fatness, and shortness of breath and heart flutters. Then, alas, comes the chin that is double and the comical lumbering waddle of the overfat. Fine sarcasm to tell such a woman to exercise. Why not counsel flying? She is unable to do the one as the other. It's another keen cut to suggest dieting. When ladies are just so fat they haven't an ounce of will power or energy to spare for extras—fine living is hard enough work for them.

What then? Are these unfortunates condemned to be fat for life? No, believe it or not, a simple home receipt, easy to get at a drug store, will take that fat off and keep it off. Listen! ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 1½ ounces Syrup Simplex mixed at home and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, will take off as much as a pound a day in some cases. Get the Marmola in the sealed packages—you are sure it is fresh that way—take the mixture a month and you'll see. The fat seems to drop off and leave nice, smooth firm flesh, while the health and activity is wonderfully

TURN YOUR FACE INTO DOLL 'S

Many a Man Has Failed Because His Face Was a Picture of Calamity.

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose. And so man, to be successful, must have sunshine inside. The life which has it not, which has no health and no happiness, is sour, surly, pessimistic, and a failure. The world already has too many vinegar faces that breathe ill-will and strife. The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph wherever he is and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers: they travel in schools, they herd together for they love their kind and the cheerful part of the world will have nothing to do with them.

And why is it that so many peddle disaster knowing at the same time that if they do, their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes from bodily disorders, and this can not always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, sour face, recklessness, disgust and lack of ambition. A bad stomach—there is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong stomach, a stomach that can take care of anything and everything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food, and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion, these tablets will digest everything in your stomach, thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, eructations, loss of vim and spirit, bad memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. Try them; carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase, you will be more satisfied with what the world does, you will think better and be happier and your face will be one of supreme contentment. That will bring you success and then more success. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

RAILWAY IS COMPLETED

LINE UP MT. MANITOU NOW IN OPERATION.

Will Be Ready for Regular Business in Short Time—Many Improvements Planned.

The Manitou Incline railway has been completed to the summit of Mt. Manitou. Several trips have been made during the last few days over the entire route, the work car having been used to convey various parties invited as guests of the owners of the road to make the trip.

The double tracking of the road for half the distance has not yet been completed, but this work is now being rushed and will be finished within a few weeks.

At present, the car is being run from power from the Hydro-Electric plant, but it is planned to erect a power station at the top of the mountain for the purpose of controlling the cables from that point. The cable is to be so fastened to both cars that one will act as a counter-balance to the other, one making the ascent while the other is on the descent.

Many Improvements Planned.

The summit of the mountain, commanding one of the finest views of mountain and plain obtainable from any point on the range, is to be parked and improved. A large pavilion is to be erected and other improvements are to be made in the immediate vicinity, which offers excellent facilities for camping. At the summit of a nearby rocky cliff an observation tower is to be erected. From this point Pikes Peak, Cameron's Cone and Mt. Baldy can be seen.

Surveys have already been made for the wagon road which is to lead, by an easy grade, from the summit of the mountain to a point near the printing office of the Cog road at the very base of the peak. It is planned to have this road, as well as the railroad and all of its accompanying improvements, completed by June 1. Work is to begin shortly on the construction of a depot near the site of the old Iron Springs hotel.

Particular pains have been taken in the construction of the road to insure the safety of passengers. The road is one of the steepest that could be constructed in this region, the worst grade being a stretch of several hundred yards at an angle of 68 degrees. Within a distance of one mile, an elevation of 2,000 feet is attained.

Cars Safeguarded.

The cars used are safeguarded by a double cable system, by which, in case one breaks, the other will immediately hold the car. Each of these cables has strength sufficient to sustain a load 40 times as great as any that it will ever be required to haul. The fact that there is not a curve on the road substracts a great deal from the strain on the rails. Special cars for the road, with a capacity of 30 passengers, are now being constructed and are expected to arrive within the next few weeks. A 15 or 20 minute service is to be maintained.

NEWS OF THE LOCAL COURTS

A protest against certain accounts allowed in the assignee's statement of the liabilities of the H. D. Osborne Cigar company was filed in the district court yesterday by the Shields-Morley Grocery company, one of the chief creditors of the bankrupt company. The accounts objected to are those of the Cuban Cigar company, for $843.82; the Fontaria Glass company, $306.41, and Cuesta Rey & Co., $1,841.

The docket for the March term of court will be called in the county court tomorrow.

An order was issued yesterday by Judge W. S. Morris in the district court compelling Elmer Rector to allow Pearl Rector, his wife, the sum of $12.50 temporary alimony until the divorce suit filed by the latter comes to trial.

DREW HER CHECK FOR ONE THOUSAND KISSES

From the New York World.

When the branch of promise suit of Mrs. Margaret Ives, a widow, of Newark, N. J., against Edwin G. Koenig, an ex-widower of Newark, comes up for Jersey adjudication next spring the friends of both litigants promise to attend in large numbers.

Mrs. Ives, who at the decease of her husband was supposed to be a woman of large means, began her suit against Koenig shortly after the death [illegible] and it was known that the late Mr. Ives had left little money of much, she was besieged by suitors of which Koenig was the most ardent.

Nearly, she says, within a thirty-one interesting letters and gave her a check that she couldn't cash. She will produce all the literature in court.

The check is on the Mercantile bank and is for "1,000 kisses," payable to Mrs. Ives. The check was duly presented, it seems, and a facetious teller wrote on the back of it:

"Bank cannot honor. Baker will have to pay in person."

Mrs. Ives avers that Koenig made these separate proposals of marriage to her in 1900 alone.

There is no denial that of all the aspirants for Mrs. Ives' hand, Koenig lasted the longest. of Bad Breath

Foul Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Eating or Drinking Stopped at Once With Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Trial Package to Prove It Sent Free.

Bilious breathers, onion eaters, indigestion victims, cabbage consumers, smokers, drinkers and those with gas on the stomach are to a large extent all by themselves, distinguished by a powerful bad breath.

They all breathe, and as they breathe they whiff off odor which makes those standing near turn their heads away in disgust. The pitiable part of it is that these victims do not realize what a sickening thing a bad, offensive breath is to others.

Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of gases and odors. It absorbs 500 times its own volume of gas.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will put a stop to your bad, offensive breath, and to your belchings, whatever the cause or source, because the charcoal quickly absorbs all noxious, unnatural odors and gases.

If you suffer from indigestion and belch gas as a result, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will absorb all the gas and make you stop belching.

If on getting up in the morning you have sores a bad, bilious breath that you can almost smell it yourself, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will set it all of it for you quickly.

If you have been smoking or chewing, or have been eating onions or other odorous things, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath pure and sweet.

Charcoal is also the best cathartic known. You can take a whole bottful and no harm will result. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

And, then, you it filters your blood, every particle of poison and impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first, thing your skin complexion.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow charcoal and just a little honey — and in a more delightful, palatable, but safe form.

VAN WINKLE CRITICALLY ILL

Prominent Yeoman Is Not Expected to Live.

J. E. Van Winkle, national organizer and state manager for Colorado of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen and secretary of the Homestake Mining & Milling company, is critically ill of pneumonia at the home, 502 East Kiowa street. Late last night he was resting easier but it is not expected that he will recover. Mr. Van Winkle contracted a severe cold while driving across the country from Sioux City, Iowa, and upon reaching Colorado Springs was taken to bed. He is attended by Dr. W. N. Sisler, the attending physician.

Mr. Van Winkle has been a resident of Colorado Springs two years. He was one of the founders of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen at Des Moines, Iowa, eleven years ago.

Total of 11,583 Books Circulated in February—Many Valuable Additions Made.

With a total circulation of 11,583 books, February, although the shortest month in the year, proved the banner month in the history of the public library. This is the largest monthly circulation that has been recorded.

The largest number of books circulated on any one day of the month was 565, the daily average being 481. The circulation of children's books for the month was 2,422 volumes, a daily average of 101. New membership cards to the number of 204 were issued, while 360 new books were catalogued.

Most important among the new books of the month are the 32 volumes comprising "Early Western Travels," edited by R. G. Thwaites. This is a work of particular value, as it has been next to impossible for even a well-endowed public library to amass any considerable collection of these early travels, the study of which is so essential to any thorough understanding of the history, manners and customs of the middle and far west.

Many New Books.

Two of the other general works received during the month were "Records of the Civil and Spiritual Condition of the Old Cathedrals of England," compiled by Henry Pley, and "International Library of Technology," in 25 volumes. Some of the other new books are:

IRRIGATION—"Irrigation Farming," by L. M. Wilcox; "Reservoirs for Irrigation, Water Power and Domestic Water Supply," by J. D. Schuyler; "Treatise on Hydraulics," by M. Merriman; "Design and Construction of Dams," by Edward Wegmann.

MISCELLANEOUS—"American waterways," printed from the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; "The Selking Range," by A. C. Wheeler; "South Americans," by Albert Hale; "Spirit of Old West Point," by Mason Scharf; "Memoirs of Countess de Boigne," 2 volumes; complete works of Victor Hugo, in French; complete works of Honore Balzac, in French; "Sunday Rest in the Twentieth Century," compiled by Dr. A. Jackson.

MUSIC—"Organs and Its Masters," by H. C. Lahee; "Orchestral Instruments and How They Are," by Arthur Underhill; "How a Song," by Philip Allen Johnson; collection of songs by American composers, including Edward MacDowell, Arthur Foote, Edgar Stillman Kelley, Reginald DeKoven, Worthington Kinsella, Arthur Farwell and others.

FICTION—"Dominations of the Rockies," by Mrs. M. Lane; "The Lifesavers," by L. N. Stevens; "The Politician," by Va. Fogazzaro; "Somehow Good," by William De Morgan; "Fountain Sealed," by Alice Sedgewick; "Medusa, Dramatic," by George Gibbs; "Woodcraft," by Charles G. Roding; "Mistress Molly," by A. C. Fox-Davies; "Margaret," by Robert Hichens; "Flying Dutch," by S. R. Adcock; "Age of Fable," by T. Bulfinch; "Black Frigate," by Louis A. Vance; "In High Places," by Dolores Bacon; "At the Point of the Bayonet," by Mrs. Gen. S. Perry; "Mistress of Bonaventure," by Harold Bindloss; "God Wills It," by Leslie Turner; "Gates of Kedar," by Gustave Ohnet; "Road to Damascus," by Mrs. H. A. Adams.

Simple Mechanical Books for Boys—"Boys' Book of Rockets," by Lieut. Graham; "Boys' Book of Model Railroads," by A. Hall; "Electric Motors," by Prof. Timbie; "Boys' Book of Model Boats," by Lieut. Hand; "Boys' Book of Model Aeroplanes," by Dr. Gross; "Boys' Book of Model Railroads," by A. C. Hall; "How to Make Electric Engines," by Prof. Timbie; "How to Make an Ice Boat," by Lieut. Graham; "Wireless Telegraph Outfits," by Prof. Timbie; "Boys' Book of Kites," by A. C. Hall; "Simple Electrical Working Models," by Prof. Timbie; "Simple Mechanical Working Models," by Prof. Timbie; "Mechanics for Young Americans," by Prof. Timbie; "Boys' Book of Inventions," by Prof. Timbie; "Boys' Book of Model Making," by A. Mr. and Mrs. A. Roe Bradeton have returned to the ... after spending several days in Rocky Ford.

The W. ... club of the south side will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Hood, 5?5 Howard street.

E. E. Chance of Freshwater ... has been visiting his uncle, Alderman J. D. Sims, for several days, returned home Friday.

George F. Geiger, who has been in the southern part of the state for the last two days, instituting Red Men orders in that region, returned to this city yesterday.

Burt Cosby was arrested Friday evening on the charge of assaulting J. H. Morrison. The warrant was sworn out in Justice Faulkner's court. The case will be tried Monday afternoon.

The Ladies Improvement society of the south side, which is now busy preparing the south side park for summer, will be glad to receive any flowering shrubs or plants to be used at the park.

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Dick Stewart on the charge of disturbance and attempt to assault his wife. The local police authorities believe that Stewart has left the city.

The case of F. Julius and Mae Gilbert, who were charged with a serious offense, has been dismissed, the defendants paying the costs. It is understood that Mrs. Julius reached a settlement with her husband outside of court.

The Social Dance club, which has been giving a series of social dances in the Wascott opera house throughout the winter, will give a St. Patrick's day dance on March 17. This dance will take the place of the regular Wednesday night dance which would have fallen on the 18th. Elaborate preparations are being made to make the ball a big success.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Fisher celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding last night at their home in the Reed block, 507½ Colorado avenue. Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and their wives, and the members of the Ladies auxiliary of the same order, were the principal guests. Mr. Fisher is an old resident. In the early days, before there was the Colorado Midland railroad was constructed, at which work he was employed. He has been in the employ of the Colorado Midland ever since.

Mr. Thomas Dwyer and daughter, Marguerite, who have been visiting Mrs. Dwyer's parents in Louisiana for several weeks, have returned to this city.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Alpha chapter gave a delightful "spread" in the physical laboratory on Thursday. The committee in charge was Edith Walker, chairman, Florence Rorry and Estelle Vandiver.

George Farrington has entertained the senior class.

Miss Southwicke, who has been instructor of drawing, has gone to New York on study art.

Eames Hull and Helena White have been absent on account of sickness.

The Alpha society is planning a St. St. Patrick's day party.

The following pupils have left school: Alma Dyer, Ada Brown, Dora Barnhardt, Ora Kennedy, Mabel Wagner, Ernest Hook, Murryale Moore, Fay Kelly, Lena Fuert, Esta Griffith, Roy Wilson, Irvine Hastings and Franklin Kimbol.

One of the most scathing rebukes ever delivered is contained in a resolution recently adopted by the Camden, N. J., Automobile club condemning the Frelinghuysen law, of which it says: "It permits justices and constables to enter into conspiracies whereby they may lay ... travelers, whether tourist or citizen, and, under the protection of the law, take from him large sums of money for the mere sake of statutory fees."

TAKES REVENGE ON AUTO

Runaway Horse Damages Dr. Arnold's Auto.

A horse hitched to the delivery wagon of H. C. Bower last evening took a fearful revenge on his enemy, the automobile, by running away from in front of the Opera House, crashing into Dr. W. W. Arnold's auto standing in front of the First National bank block, breaking an axle of the machine, and carrying off one of its front wheels. Neither of the vehicles was occupied but J. W. Earp, the driver of the wagon who was just getting out of the rig when the horse started, was knocked down and run over by one of the hind wheels, escaping with nothing more serious than severe bruises. The horse was stopped near the Burns theater by Police Officer Gavin.

The runaway was due to the fact that a fly was attached to the horse, the horse being frightened by the dropping of the shaft on one side.

Are You Deformed or Crippled?

Read What Mr. Funderburk Has to Say About the Cure of His Child.

To those who are directly interested in crippled or deformed children or young adults the following should appeal:

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 10, 1907.
The L. C. McLain Sanitarium,
St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen—Edith has no trouble at all. She uses her limbs as if they had never been paralyzed, and that is hard to realize when we remember that when we took her to your Sanitarium five years ago she had no use of her legs at all, due to infantile paralysis which followed a severe attack of brain fever.

We recently had her picture taken and mail you one to show you how well she is now, but the picture does not convey an adequate idea and you should see her run about in order to realize just how well she is.

I have referred dozens of afflicted people to your place, and hope some of them have seen you. Yours very truly,

GEORGE W. FUNDERBURK.

What we have done for this child and hundreds of other crippled and afflicted people, we can do for you if given the opportunity.

Write us freely and at once regarding any case of spinal deformity, crooked feet, infantile paralysis, crippled or deformed joints or limbs, and we will be pleased to advise you. Our Book, "Deformities and Paralysis," with references, is Free for the asking. The L. C. McLain Orthopedic Sanitarium, 2704 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

ONLY A GHOST STORY.

From the New York Globe.

An old New Yorker, returned after [illegible] residence in the west, was discussing the astounding changes on Broadway a night or two ago, and especially in the theaters.

"The most ideal, everything is ideal, in Ireland this season," said he. "I have the pleasure of feeling when I go to Daly's or Wallack's, or the Lyceum square. I like to go all right, but it's a pleasure that's almost a pain.

"You see, in either of those theaters I'm sitting among ghosts all the time—the ghosts of the famous old stock companies that inhabited them when I was a younger, and the ghosts of some of the well-known first nights when I were middle-aged 30 years ago. I [illegible] plainly as I see the [illegible] saw. I can't unmask them just as they are now, and they actually slip me long after I get to bed.

"Yes, I like well enough to have [illegible] around me. But, don't you know, I'm rather a bit superstitious with the [illegible] I am missing."

Overeating and Its Cure

A Common Fault, Resulting From Ignorance of Food Values—When Diet Is Properly Proportioned and Combined No One Desires to Eat Too Much—American Habits of Eating

BY DR. G. HENRY BRINKLER.
(Author of "Suitable Foods.")

ONE-QUARTER of what we eat keeps us; the rest we keep at the risk of our lives," said grandly old Abernethy, one of London's most famous doctors. Three-quarters of foods bought and eaten is for useful purposes. The body [illegible] with a needless struggle with [illegible] of foods, and undigested [illegible]

Most people take too much [illegible] pastry and other starchy foods which lack the elements which feed the brain and nerves, and the body remains starved from lack of suitable meats, fruits and vegetables. Others overeat on fatty or sweet foods. The complete cure for overeating lies in eating the right kinds of foods to the body's requirements. Meats, vegetables and fruits should predominate for sedentary people or brain workers, while cereals should preponderate for hard, muscular exertion. Pork, duck, salmon and fatty fish are the best foods for supplying bodily warmth in cold weather. Fruits and vegetables purify and assist digestion, while lemon juice and tomatoes assist in cooling.

Overeating is caused by the kind of food and not by the bulk. It is assumed that a person must fill up to become satisfied and well nourished. If any discomfort ensues, the various kinds of foods have been wrongly chosen for the needs of that occasion. The real question of overeating resolves itself into one of kinds and proportions, for when one is replete with all kinds of foods one does not desire to eat more. In weather as cold as at the north pole one might drink fish oil by the quart, while a small glass full at the tropics would be overtaxing me and overeating. After a day of wood chopping one might eat a bowl of beans without eating too much, but after a day of sedentary work in office a small plate of beans would be overeating, while a cabbage might be well eaten. A person can expect only on one of two kinds of foods as the best and supply to meet it. Even a compound of a food for invalids would [illegible] overeating.

Why Is a Fat Man?

Long after any degree of discomfort is manifest to ourselves, neighbors and [illegible] overeating. If a person habitually takes enough to be distinct and does not need that kind of food he is overeating by that much, and is detracting from the energy value of the strength the suitable foods supply, and is missing the energy which would have come from a more consistently suitable food. KEEP THE ISSUE IN MIND.

THE Republican voters of El Paso County should not permit themselves to be misled by the efforts of Mr Hamlin's newspaper organ and his horde of retainers to confuse the issue There are two issues which may be stated as follows First

Shall the Republican party of El Paso County give its indorsement to a candidate for Senator who has experience in legislative affairs, wide acquaintance and influence with the foremost men at the national capital, and who by his four years of honorable and useful service to the state in the lower branch of Congress, has demonstrated his fitness for the higher office? or,

Shall it indorse a conspicuous representative of the idle-rich class who has had no training for the place and possesses none of the qualifications above named, and who covets the Senatorship merely to gratify his ambition for a place of high honor which will enable him to enlarge his field of social activity?

The second issue is

Do the Republican voters of El Paso County want this question to be settled by a free expression of the will of the majority at the primaries or

Will they sanction the outrageous misuse of the wealth of the MHI Trust—the real backers of the Hamlin candidacy—to defeat the popular will?

These are the only issues at stake in the present campaign All other matters are side issues Denver influence or money has no place in the affairs of the voters

AS TO JOINT DEBATES

LITTLE sympathy ought to be extended to Mr Brooks for his refusal to sanction the Hamlin scheme of a continuous vaudeville performance playing engagements at seven different places the object of which Mr Hamlin hopes will be to bamboozle the voters Mr Hamlin's wish that Mr Brooks could confine himself to a single meeting could only be prompted by a desire to keep the voters of the other counties of the state in ignorance of his candidacy, but it discreetly remains silent If getting him on the platform would be a means of securing the desired information perhaps it is to be regretted, after all that Mr Brooks did not gratify his desire for a seven-days gabfest

IMPORTANCE OF THE PRIMARIES.

"WHY are the papers making all this fuss about the primaries This is a remark one hears at times and perhaps an explanation is needed

The primaries are for the selection of delegates to the county convention and the ordinary voter often thinks it makes no special difference who those delegates are and does not take the trouble to go to the polls

This time there is a chance to express a preference for United States Senator There is no law in relation to the matter, but there is a custom, if any If the voters choose to select one set of delegates rather than another and vote for them because they stand for the candidacy of a particular man they have a perfect right to do it and that is what they are asked to do this time Whether an agreement between the candidates is reached or not as to regarding these primaries as final never the less there will be two sets of names for delegates at every polling place and the voters must elect either one or the other and whichever one gets a good majority of its delegates will naturally be regarded as the choice of El Paso County and may have his name presented as such to the voters of the other counties of the State

If El Paso County wants the United States senatorship she will have to make a choice between her own two candidates first They can't both be elected Now is the time and these primaries are the easiest and most satisfactory way for declaring the preference of voters

So come out and vote on primary day so that the expression of preference may be full and unmistakable

In his latest letter to Mr Brooks Mr Hamlin protests that he is not a man of large means and that the report that he has a large campaign fund is absolutely without foundation in fact Good heavens for goodness sakes have mercy on the boys who are flocking around Hamlin like flies around a molasses barrel are doomed to disappointment

When Mr Hamlin or his backers call for help to the Patterson papers and have a right to the Democratic Republican [illegible] Democratic [illegible] Democratic [illegible] Democratic Spelling Reformers Give Reasons for Their Newest Recommendations, Some of Which May Astonish and Worry the Reader.

From the New York Evening Post.

MANY of those who recognize the force in the contention that some sort of reform or simplification in the spelling of English words are to be made, and who are willing to accept the recommendations put forth by the Simplified Spelling Board, in the New York Evening Post of March 1, are disposed to favor the changes favored are merely academic or technical, and have no better reason for their support than a desire to achieve a degree of uniformity or to conform to a phonetic ideal.

The world realizes that human beings are prone to cling to long-established customs, however mischievous or harmful, whether in spelling or in politics or social usages, that it takes a great deal of cogent reasoning and explanation to get them to make a change. In recognition of this desire for the authority for the changes recommended in last week's circular Dr. H. Pyle Scott, the secretary of the board, has furnished material which will help those interested to see the board's reasons for making their recommendations.

When, in March, 1906, the board published its first list of 300 words, it included only such words as were already spelled in two or more ways by high authorities. The list was in no sense a suggestion for "new" spellings. The second list, issued last week, consists first of a list of 75 of the more difficult and perplexing words simplified, and, secondly, of six classified lists coming under general rules of simplification. A consideration of the list of 75 simplified forms and the reasons there for follows:

Taking first the word ache, which it is proposed to change to ake, it is shown that its present form is due to a faulty derivation. The verb is properly ake from the Anglo-Saxon acan, just as bake is the form derived from the Anglo-Saxon bacan. It was so spelled by Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare and Bunyan—in fact by every writer before the eighteenth century, as it has been used by Pope, R. Harrison, and many other well-known writers since that time.

When S's Were Dropped.

The dropping of s from isle, aisle, and island was a similar reform, since they never should have been put into the word. These forms were commonly used by Shakespeare, Spenser, Milton, and Sir Thomas Browne.

Ghost received its h from Calvin, who set it in the fifteenth century, following a Dutch fashion later abandoned and printed the old English gost with the h omitted. This action paved the way for the insertion of the h in ghast and gastly. Mar., later writers instituted to adopt the simplification, and we find that Spenser, Milton, and Pope spelled aspet without the h.

Many people will probably balk at the substitution of f for ph in such words as alphabet, biography, pamphlet, paragraph, telegraph, paragraph, and the like, but according to the spelling board, the change might ultimately to be made in all words containing ph in their value, although no present changes are recommended only in a few of the more familiar words. It is pointed out that all such words are spelled with an f in Spanish, Italian, Danish, Swedish, Polish, Bohemian, Hungarian, etc., and that the same spelling was common in such of these as existed in late or middle Latin. Such words passed into Anglo-Saxon, and middle English with the f, but in most the classical Latin ph was restored. Other words in exactly the same class, such as fancy, frantic, frenzy, frieze, coffin, and coffer, did not return to the ph spelling, although there is apparently no good reason why they should not also have reverted to the classical form.

The Greek sign phi, which the classical Latin expressed by the ph in words of the board has properly considered by f. In the case of camphor and sulphur the suggested changes have not yet been introduced, as the words are not derived historically from the Greek but from the Arabic.

Sanction of Spenser and Milton.

Authors, editors, and others the board would deprive of their old privilege although in the Latin originals the letter was pronounced, it is silent in the modern English and therefore is considered superfluous; ladyship is to lose its y for the same reason that led to the adoption of the spelling sheriff, which was recommended in the board's first list of 300 words. The latter has the sanction not only of Spenser, Milton, Burnam, and the Bible but is adopted as an alternative spelling by the Webster and Century dictionaries. Some day, the board says, all the words such as head and bread, in which ea is pronounced like short e must lose the superfluous a. The recommended spelling here for borough, it is pointed out, has been in use for local names ending in borough, as Edinboro, for 300 years, and has been officially adopted by the United States board of geographic names. It is also in line with the earlier recommendation in regard to thorough. The spelling furlough is an erroneous substitution of the Dutch word verlof from which it was derived, and the present change merely corrects the mistake.

Recommendations for the dropping of e from build and building are based on the forms of the middle English words from which they were derived. To the same class belong busy, which retains its gothic English forms and dizzy, which has acquired the modern spelling. The former has retained the u and gild retains which has for its simpler form the authority of both the Standard and Century dictionaries.

It is recommended that the g is dropped from sovereign, foreign, sovereign and determine, as it is needless. Campaign is said to be a modern spelling. The change merely follows the recommendation made in the first list as to apothegm. The earlier spellings of foreign and sovereign were foreign, forain, and soverain or soverain. The board close its spelling stories and "severn, feathom, forrig-nizing it in the country the present pronunciation more nearly approximates faith and severn.

Dropping Final Letters.

According to the board the spelling could be altered, to which a change is recommended "is one of the worst spellings in the English language." The reason for this is that it is a "disagreeing mixture" of the modern French hoeur and the ear. English spelling of the which is the method form found in Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Addison, Pope, and Tennyson, and is still retained in the English Book of Common Prayer.

In the spelling of words, which the board recommends should be changed to ough, two will be considered, one the fruit Portuguese and Spanish, and the other seeds of a tropical tree. The former cacao and the powder or drink derived from them. The confusion of the two words by Dr. Johnson in his dictionary in 1755 has been continued by other dictionaries.

Omission of the final e from league, colleague, harangue and tongue follows the recommendation made in respect to catalogue, pedagogue, etc., in the first list. The spelling tongue in regard to which the most radical change is urged is recommended, is said to be a substitution for the form tung or tong, and the like, common in early modern English.

Counterfeit, surfeit, and forfeit are to be deprived of their superfluous e's, because the f formerly pronounced it is now pronounced like short i, and should be made to conform with the words of the same origin such as benefit and profit, in which the process of elimination has already taken place. The dropping of u from courteous and courtesy is based on the fact that in legal use the shorter form is already common, and in the sense of an act of respect is still preferred by some dictionaries.

Cutting off the final b from crumb, dumb, lamb, limb, numb and thumb is recommended because the letter is silent. None of the Anglo-Saxon originals except dumb and lamb possessed b, and the letter was omitted by Shakespeare, Milton and Ben Jonson. Crum is now preferred by some dictionaries, and everyone writes the words dummy and numskull without the b. The silent b in such words as debtor, doubt, redoubt, and their derivatives is merely a sixteenth-century insertion in imitation of the b in remote Latin originals, and the board finds in Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, and the English Bible examples of the simpler forms.

The Lucky "Egg."

Egg is the only common word in modern English which still retains the gg ending. Once upon a time leg and peg and pig and dig had this ending. To be sure the shortening of egg makes it appear rather startling and brings it into the two-letter class, but there is just as much reason for the change as there was in the case of the, the board says. Some time the board may recommend the dropping of the double ending from hell and pill, but such a move would involve changes in as many hundred words that it is not contemplated just at present.

The three words, exceed, proceed, and succeed, formerly excede, precede, and succede, were the first of their group to come into common English use. They soon assumed the characteristic ce type, common in such purely English words as deed, feed, and the like, with which they were in no way related. Subsequently eight other words, derived from the same root (cede, intercede, concede, precede, recede, secede, accede, and antecede), came into use, retaining their original form. The recommendation of the board that the first three be spelled with the cede ending is for the purpose of removing an ambiguity, and making the irregular minority conform to the majority.

Dropping the u from guard and guarantee is a reversion to the older spellings of the Elizabethan writers, a "safe return" of which we retain in regard. The elimination of the u from colour and sheriff is advocated on the same grounds.

In the dropping of e from ache, age, acquire, and active the board believes it is facilitating a move of considerable importance, for the e has never been properly a part of the words. At one time it existed unproperly in the letter, minne, love, destruction and like words, but for the reason and another they have been reformed or else. Scout was formerly scut, derived through the French from the Latin scutum, and is opposite to ascutcheon, used sensibly. There is no more reason for the e in scone than there is in the other words Shakespeare and Bacon so used it.

Some Superfluous C's.

Scout was formerly skin, or sk, and c [illegible] is a falsified spelling. The Latin root posed to change to sithe, is merely a bad spelling of its present form. There are [illegible] authorities for Johnson among them, for the proposed reformed spelling. The shortening of sleve to sle is in conformity with the correct modern pronunciation.

Changing wer and werd to wer and werd is merely to restore anomalous forms to agree with the majority usage [illegible] as per, pleze, field, and creed, all words of the same class.

Six classes of words falling in general under two general rules call for comment. Words ending in le are shortened to il, as docile, fertile, reptile, subtile, etc. This is in conformity with a similar change which has taken place in the case of April, civil, fossil, utensil, and virgil. The board recognizes the different pronunciations of some of these words such as fertile, hostile, etc., and points out that, of course, people who continue to pronounce these words with the long i will not be expected to drop the final e.

It is the same way with words ending with the obsolete [illegible] as heroine, engine, etc. Words of this class such as cabin, origin, margin, and the like have already lost their final e. But here, too, it is recognized that the final e may be restored if the speaker pronounces the [illegible] The same rule applies also to words ending in ise [illegible] practise [illegible] to words ending in the obligative, [illegible] ceptive, respective, infinite, etc., and to words ending in ive to [illegible] adjective, definite, relative, etc. The last two lists are very long. Many of the former [illegible] words have long been changed to it as audit, credit, orbit, exhibit, merit, spirit, and the like. The words with the [illegible] ending are more than 50 in number.

For words ending in ed with the pronunciation of t a general rule for the adoption of t is promulgated. There are more than 500 matches and battles in this class. Verbs that end in ce are exceptions, as fare which would become fact. Let the change. Nothing can be done with these words, it is explained, until they are changed to s.

THEFT OF WAR SECRETS.

Declaration That Such Event Never Really Could Happen.

From the New Orleans Picayune

Some weeks ago the country was somewhat startled by a report emanating from Paris to the effect that the American war department had discovered that a copy of the plans of the mobilization of the American forces in the event of war had been stolen and sold to the Japanese government by a traitor. Such a sensational statement naturally impressed timid people, but when analyzed it must become at once apparent that the whole story is a canard utterly unworthy of belief, and set afloat undoubtedly with a view to making a readable story in the sensational press.

It would be impossible for any traitor to sell American mobilization plans to a foreign government, even if he desired, for the very good reason that no such plans exist. Military secrets are few in any country in this day of the ubiquitous military and naval attaché, but in the United States it can be frankly admitted that nothing of the sort exists. It is true we have an army general staff, and that one of its purposes is to prepare mobilization plans, but that any such plans have been prepared except the most general and with the most rudimentary details, no one believes. It is also true that strangers are now excluded from fortifications, but all the details of the armament of such fortifications are published so freely that foreign military authorities can secure the information they desire without having to buy up one or more traitors.

If it is true that Japan has published certain alleged mobilization plans, she might have saved her money, as no secrets is made of any military movements or preparations in the United States. Should war ever appear to be near with Japan or any other power, Congress will promptly make an extraordinary appropriation to enable the government to meet the situation. The National guard will be called into service, as the law provides, and the moment war appears to be inevitable, there will be a call for volunteers. All this is provided for by law, hence there is no secret at all about the matter. It is true that reserve supplies of arms, ammunition and equipment ought also to be collected and held in reserve for emergencies, but no such reserve stocks have yet been accumulated.

Not only have we no military secrets, but it does not appear at all necessary that we should have them.

Only melted gold is minted; only moistened clay is moulded; only softened wax receives the die; only broken and contrite hearts can take and keep the impress of heaven.—F. B. Meyer.

A Twentieth Century Science on which Americans Spend $600,000,000 a Year. Swarthmore and Many State Colleges Now Teach Advertising and Salesmanship Along with "Academic" Subjects. Important Part of Psychology in "Hypnotising" Buyers with Type, Ink and White Paper.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—To ninety-nine American business men in a hundred, probably, advertising has become one of the prime necessities of life. Not haphazard advertising of the old fashioned kind, [illegible] paper with so much black ink and was valuable as giving a concern's address if anyone was sufficiently interested in the concern's goods to look for it, but the modern, twentieth century kind of advertising which makes the use of display type an art and the wording of "copy" a science.

American colleges have come to recognize that to meet the needs of American boys they must add to their purely academic courses opportunities to learn "merely practical" things. Banking, finance and bookkeeping have been introduced among the studies at Harvard and Yale; salesmanship is taught in many of the state universities, and at Swarthmore college, near Philadelphia, there are now regular courses in advertising.

Advertising in its development as a science fits curiously into the academic curriculum. Good advertising, like good salesmanship, is to a large degree a matter of psychology or understanding human nature, of presenting your case in the way that will appeal most quickly and forcibly to the minds of people whom you wish to make customers. The psychology of successful advertising is much its most interesting and valuable phase, and is by no means the least interesting and valuable branch of the general study of psychology. Indeed, the relation of the principles of psychology to successful advertising have been a matter of serious study by professors of psychology in prominent American universities, perhaps the most exhaustive study of this sort and the most complete series of experiments having been made by Dr. Walter Dill Scott, director of the psychological laboratory at Northwestern university. And in his book "The Theory of Advertising," which is used at Swarthmore as a textbook, Dr. Scott sets forth in entertaining but intensely practical form the results of a long series of investigations conducted primarily in the spirit of the scientific discoverer.

Advertising is a subject of general interest, too. It appeals not only to the man whose business depends upon it but to the woman whose buying depends upon it, and the younger members of the family who get not a little of their knowledge of the progress of the world from the current advertising columns. Dr. Scott's "Theory of Advertising," with all its practical helpfulness to the business man and the student, is not merely an instructive work. In many places it is vastly entertaining and even humorous, and the glimpses it gives of the science of psychology—one of the most interesting of all modern lines of study, yet possibly the least familiar out to a majority of readers—make it both entertaining and useful to the general consumer of literature. Each point Dr. Scott illustrates with what he considers good and bad advertisements, explaining the merits or defects of each, and it is curious to see how the critical scientist reduces to absolute laws the vague impressions that every reader has had, though very likely he does not realize that he has had them until they are explained to him in this way.

There is no question of the importance of advertising in these days when competition is so keen and when the newspapers and magazines have become the mail marketplaces of the country. Dr. Scott describes the purpose of advertising as being to attract attention to goods in such a way that he who reads will desire to possess them, and the first requisite of good advertising is, therefore, that it shall attract and fix the reader's mind. That this is not so easy to do as one might think is evident when you consider how narrow our attention is. Psychologists have determined by a great variety of exact tests that practically nobody can attend to more than four visual objects at once, about four letters, four simple pictures, four geometrical figures, four easy words, or what not, are as much as the mind will take in together.

The power with which one thing attracts the eye depends largely on the absence of counter attractions, Dr. Scott points out. Whether the counter attractions are in other advertisements or are all within the individual advertiser's own space, each will do something to distract attention from the first unless it is carefully placed—the lesson from which is that to much display used indiscriminately is almost worse than none at all. Beyond that, the power of an object to attract attention depends upon the intensity of the sensation it arouses; on the contrast it forms to objects presented with it; on the ease with which we are able to comprehend it, and on the frequency with which it is put before us.

In a chapter on the association of ideas Dr. Scott discusses how the advertiser is aided by the three laws of habit based on repetition, of recency, and of vividness or intensity. We think first of what we are accustomed to see, we notice first what we are [illegible] to see or hear. Next we observe most quickly what is made prominent in our mind by having previously observed it only a short time before. After that our attention will be directed among a thousand objects to the one with which they have been most vividly associated in the [illegible] of the many people, because [illegible] the case of that make has constantly [illegible] In nearly every publication [illegible] at and has [illegible] heard [illegible] and it has become practically [illegible] with "the" in their mind. If you want to buy a package of breakfast food you first think of getting the last thing you saw advertised. If you are considering taking a pleasure trip one will come into your mind for [illegible] consideration the resort or the [illegible] of transportation the attractions of [illegible] most vividly set before [illegible] the [illegible] wise advertiser will do, Dr. Scott points out, [illegible] name or [illegible] the [illegible] closely associated with its class of goods in the minds of as many as possible of the people who might buy what he has to offer.

It is often said that a salesman who has unusual success "hypnotises" his customers. Hypnotism used to be regarded [illegible] being had over another, but nowadays it is known to be nothing but a matter of suggestion, the instinctive impulse of humanity being to act on any suggestion that is made strongly enough unless there is a stronger counter-suggestion. While the advertiser loses whatever force his physical personality might lend to still may "hypnotise" his customer just as the salesman does, if he can make his suggestions strong enough. So an advertisement should suggest the purchase of goods so strongly that the reader will act upon it, and that may be done in various ways, Dr. Scott shows.

The most positive suggestion is in the form of what is called "the direct command," telling somebody to do something. Though few people would be willing to admit it, there are doubtless thousands who have used one brand of soap simply because they read, over and over again, the command to use it. On the other hand, a great many minds resent being told what to do unless the command is put with considerable diplomacy, and Dr. Scott discusses this phase of the matter in a way that will surprise many of his business readers.

To go into every side of getting business by the use of display type and illustrations, as Dr. Scott does in his "Theory of Advertising," to discuss how it has been proved beyond question that certain forms of letters are preferable to other forms, that certain kinds of pictures do more to drive customers away than to attract them, that certain sorts of "copy" are no better than a waste of money, would be to give the course in advertising at Swarthmore all over in print. Certain it is that the most successful American advertising experts work along the lines which Dr. Scott's book develops. And equally certain is it that scientific advertising is as important to the business men of the United States who it is estimated are spending something like $600,000,000 a year for printed salesmanship as scientific doctoring or scientific architecture. The economy that will be secured in proportionately greater results from such applications of psychology to advertising as Dr. Scott makes may, it is safe to say, be reckoned in hundreds of thousands of dollars, or even in millions.

PRINCESS MARIE'S GOWNS.

The Finest Trousseau [illegible] for a Royal [illegible]

From the New York World.

The richest and best dressed princess in the world has just married the handsomest and biggest prince. Small wonder, then, that her trousseau is the talk of all Europe, and that hints of its wonders have crossed the Atlantic to set this continent talking, too.

The princess is Marie Bonaparte, of France, daughter of Prince Roland Bonaparte and granddaughter of Edmond Blanc, owner of the Casino at Monte Carlo, who left her $10,000,000. Clothes are a fine art with her, and she is known as being the best groomed and best dressed woman on the continent. She has a figure which brings joy to the heart of the designer of modes, a charming profile, a fine complexion, and soft, brown hair, which does not tax the ingenuity of a hairdresser.

The man in the case is Prince George, second son of the king of Greece, who, despite his royal parents, might well hesitate to assume the tradesmen's bills for his bride-elect if she had not an enormous fortune of her own.

The $100,000 Trousseau.

And the clothes! They were made by Drecoll of Paris, and in his atelier a few of the socially (and financially) elect have been permitted to view this marvelous trousseau, which cost 5 million francs, or $100,000.

Fifty gowns contribute the heavier items of this smart trousseau, and they range from severely but perfectly fitted tailored suits to state costumes that recall the fairy tales of childhood, in which the princess is always clad in shimmery satin, cloth of gold or silver lace. For everything not tailored in Princess Marie's wardrobe shimmers and gleams as if gems instead of threads had been woven together by the finest looms in the world.

While expert designers were employed on the trousseau, many ideas were advanced by the princess herself, who has decided opinions on dress. Therefore the empire effect is much seen in all house gowns and state costumes. White and very delicate tints, with touches of silver, enter into her evening frocks, and in heavier cloths, velvets, etc., a rich wine color seems to predominate.

White crepe de chine is the material used in several of the most effective empire gowns. There is a wedding gown of monseeline and Malines lace which alone cost $5,000, while the lace veil is worth $4,000. Some of her house shoes cost $200 a pair, because the buckles are of solid gold, set with gems. Her bridal underwear averaged $1,000 per set, and her handkerchiefs, because of their exquisite embroidery, cost $28 each.

Among the items in which fur figures may be mentioned an evening coat of white broadcloth, superbly embroidered and faced with sable; a stole made from ermine strips and real lace insertion, lined with embroidered chiffon, and a chinchilla pelerine.

Of hats there is no end—one for each street costume and more beautiful and delicate ones for carriage and evening wear. The latter show much gold and silver lace, combined with marabou and ostrich feathers, while the hat tilted on the left side, and the very small toque have supplanted the huge mushroom shape which marks the millinery of the waning season.

One of the most beautiful gowns is a combination of ivory crepe de chine over white satin, with a border of silver in Greek design and arabesques of fine pearls. The Empire bodice shows a surplice effect outlined by pearl embroidery, while the kimono sleeves are done in silver embroidery. The girdle, narrow and oddly held in place by scarab-shaped ornaments, is done in pearls and silver combined.

A ball dress of cream colored tulle is braided with fine silk. The petticoat is of tulle with two insertions of the silk braiding, while the tunic is a solid mass of the braid. The corsage and sleeves are embroidered in topazes, the whole making a color scheme which is calculated to drive any artistic woman mad with envy.

A costume for state occasions is of heavy white satin, overlaid with silver roses. The skirt is trimmed with these silver flowers, in points to the knees, the bodice is one mass of silver lace and the short sleeves are caught up with roses that gleam like jewels.

Other notable costumes include a rose colored mousseline de soie theater frock with applications of point d'Angleterre; an evening gown of blue tulle ornamented with clear blue paillettes, a matching girdle of liberty silk with black velvet ribbon; a reception robe in old rose silk voile embroidered in self-tone and brightened by long gold silk fringe, and a house gown of black tulle paillette with peacock blue.

THE UNITED STATES AS A SPANISH POWER

From Review of Reviews.

The United States has become to a great extent a Spanish power. And this, in the end, will be much to the advantage of Peninsular Spain. That is to say, (1) the United States has acquired and is developing Porto Rico, which will remain a Spanish speaking country. (2) Our capital, influence, and energy are transforming Cuba, and that also will remain a Spanish republic. (3) The progress of the Philippines under our direction is bound to be very great, and yet the Philippines will probably remain more Spanish than American for generations to come. (4) Our acquisition of the Panama canal zone and our efforts there, together with our influence throughout Central America, will count almost beyond calculation for the upbuilding of Spanish speaking regions adjacent to the Caribbean sea. (5) Our peculiar relations toward Mexico will continue to count for the advancement of that republic. The best Spanish minds begin to perceive that the future greatness of Spain is not to lie in the direction of political empire, but rather in that of the intellectual, artistic and social leadership of the Spanish speaking world. The Spanish speaking countries of the western hemisphere are coming rapidly into a new and favorable recognition from other countries. This had been largely due to the friendly attitude and policy of the United States under the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Root. The Spanish speaking world is destined to rank next to the English speaking in point of population. The Spaniards of the peninsula perceive that the strength of the United States is the best possible guaranty of the future greatness of the Spanish speaking peoples. But in the strength and the declared policy of "Uncle Sam,"—as he is known throughout Latinic America—the aggressive states of Europe would by this time have seized portions of South America for colonial dominion. Uncle Sam's position protects the Spanish speaking republics as they steadily move toward maturity and stability on their own account. Even if the slender political bonds that unite Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa to the British islands were completely severed, the general growth of the English speaking world would continue to reflect glory and many sorts of leadership and prosperity upon the British Isles. In like manner, Spain must, if worthy, reap continuing and ever growing benefits from the progress of the Spanish speaking regions of the world. The United States has now become the one great guarantor of the security and progress of the Spanish world. This is a somewhat new idea, and yet the best minds in Barcelona and Madrid doubtless appreciate it.

MACHINIST 'PHONED TO ROOSEVELT

Discharge of 1,000 Navy Yard Employes Prevented by Him.

Washington Correspondence New York World.

One machinist at the Washington navy yard, grimy from his work, went to the telephone and accomplished what congressmen, the secretary of the navy and the assistant secretary had said was impossible. He put 500 men back to work and prevented the discharge of as many more.

When the order went out Tuesday that 500 men must be laid off because of the lack of funds, John D. Simmering, an old-time employe, and one of the most skilled, said to his foreman that it was a shame.

"It's all of that," said the foreman, "but there's no money."

"May I use your 'phone?" asked Simmering. He wiped his hands on his overalls, grasped the receiver and asked for "Main 6," the White House. He got Mr. Loeb. When the situation was explained, Loeb said the President was busy, but he would tell him.

Simmering returned to his machine. Half an hour later the navy yard 'phone rang and the operator was told that Mr. Simmering was wanted. The information was conveyed that "this is the White House," and the operator found Mr. Simmering.

John again wiped his hands on his overalls and seized the receiver by the throat. The President himself was at the other end of the wire. The two had a talk which resulted in an invitation to Simmering to visit the White House next morning. He got leave of absence and called. The President arranged an interview with Mr. Newberry, assistant secretary of the navy.

The result is that all the men discharged are restored. There is no more money than before, but instead of any one being laid off permanently, all the force will participate in furloughs each month until the government's finances are in better shape. Instead of a limited number of men suffering entire idleness, the whole force of 1,000 men will share the burden.

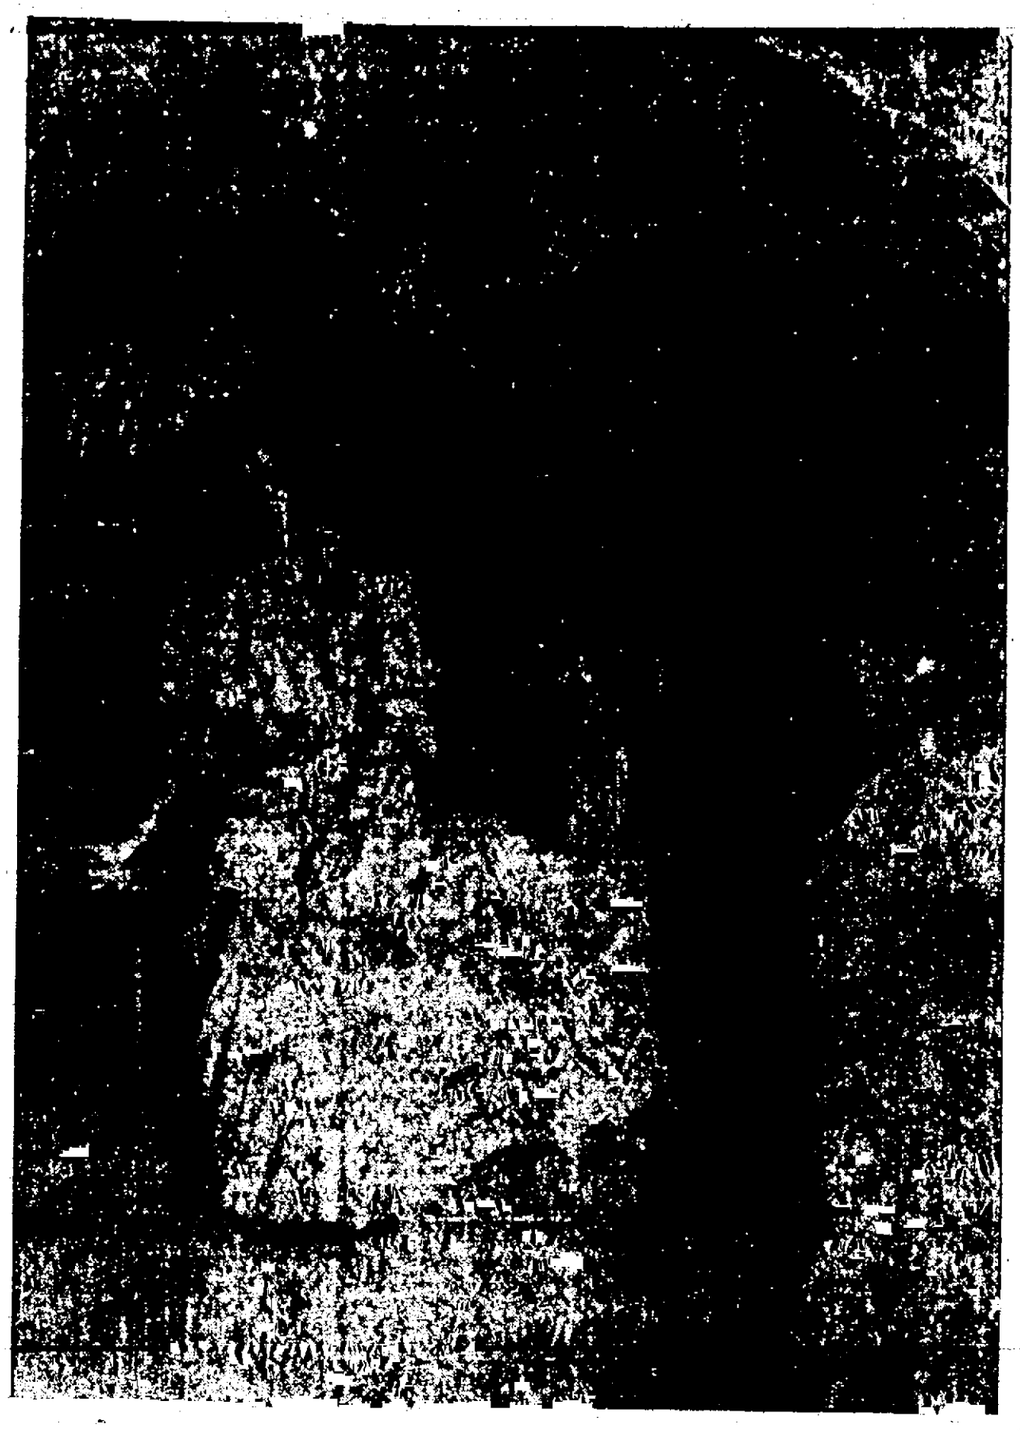
THE YEAR OF PROBATION

By Gertrude Barnum

Copyright, 1908, by Thomas H. McKee.

NORA COUGHLIN and Tim Monahan led the grand march. Nora was pink and spicy as a carnation in her smart silkaline dress, which stood out in stiff ruffles above the slim ankles and feet. Her hair, topped by its nightcap of feathers, was a marvel of sunny pompadour and marcel waves, which only another Belle of the Shamrock Pleasure Club could describe. She carried nonchalantly under her elbow-gloved arm a large variegated bouquet, with shiny embroidered-paper holder and streaming ribbons. And Tim! He was a born leader of grand marches! Loose black curls were trained in studied carelessness over his brow. The deferential pose of the sloping shoulder and cocked elbow, upon which Nora leaned, was one that no girl could resist; and the amble of his knees and hips, as he slowly led the long line of dance couples, was in latest Bowery fashion.



"YOU'RE AWAY BEHIND THE PROCESSION WITH THE BUGGLE."

It was a splendid pageant that trailed down the center of Callahan's Casino Hall under the brilliant electric-light clusters. Two members of the Floor Committee distributed dance programs with irreproachable solemnity. The onlookers sat spellbound by the growing intricacy of the march as it progressed: two by two alternating, four abreast, four by four alternating and abreast, and at last, with a great blare from fourteen pieces of Milligan's Band, a solid line of the fair and the brave advanced across the hall amidst tumultuous applause and whistling from the boxes.

Even the austere reserve of Nora and Tim thawed in this moment of triumph. They smiled proudly into each other's eyes as they swung into the first waltz to the music of "My Wife Won't Let Me."

"You're all the goods, Peaches! You don't dance with any one but me this night," said Tim.

Nora handed him her dance card for answer, and he put it in his pocket, and left her declining dances in a thickening crowd of swains, while he went to get his first drink.

John Mullen, though late in arriving at the ball, was very confident as he held out his hand for Nora's program; custom justified him in expecting special favors.

Nora only tipped her chin. "Nothing left; you're away behind the procession with the buggle."

"Cut it out!"

"Ask Tim."

"I'll bet you and Tim's going to do the grand march the last of the evenin'!"

"You'll be winning on that bet."

John pushed closer angrily. "Is that his pin you're wearin'?"

"It is so. No other."

"Look out you don't get scratch-d."

Nora felt a pang as she gazed after the dejected shoulders of her retreating second-best "gentleman friend," and she planned a canny plot of sitting out dances with John if Tim stayed too often or too long with the refreshments.

In everyday life the Shamrock Pleasure Club ladies were known as "plate hustlers," being waitresses by trade.

But under the spell of Milligan's Band, Nora Coughlin had left the every-day world. As she floated the waltzes or glided the two-steps she moved as in a dream. Tim swept her with him across the slippery hall when he went for refreshments, and she forgot John, though he conspicuously flaunted Lucy Scanlan in the range of her vision. Nora was acclaimed the Belle of the Ball, but she forgot even this supreme glory when Tim led her out among the fluttering shadows of the Casino garden and whispered:

"The next ball will be a weddin', eh?"

After the next ball, which was a wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Monahan began light housekeeping in two neat furnished rooms. Sometimes the housekeeping was very light, for bartenders' pay-days often end in festivities which make inroads into weekly incomes. While Nora could take substitute "lunch-shift jobs," the Monahans were able to "manage," but when she had to devote herself to baby clothes, it took nothing short of genius to keep the rent paid, oil in the kerosene stove, and provisions in the pantry.

The young wife would not nag. She nursed Tim's headaches and kept her heartaches to herself.

One frosty pay-day morning, as she turned up her husband's overcoat collar about his ears, she said:

"What's the matter with you coming home to-night an' us havin' a birthday reunion, you and me?"

Tim's face showed conflicting emotions.

"Is this your birthday, Peaches?"

"My first—I don't count anythin' before the weddin'."

"What'll I bring you?"

"Yourself."

He kissed the red cheeks and the eyelids which were shyly dropped, and his voice choked as he tried to speak lightly.

"That's easy."

It wasn't so easy; but Tim dodged "the boys" that night and returned to find his wife in her wedding dress, bustling over a festive table. She produced savory, steaming dishes from the kitchen and pantry corners of the parlor-dining-room; and he proudly unwrapped mysterious bundles as the feast progressed. They lived over old times, laughed at old jokes, and took their kisses through smoke rings, as in the dear old days of courtship. Presently Nora produced a great basket and unpacked stacks of little clothes, all beribboned and be-laced, sweet with perfume, and together the delighted lovers shook out little socks and jackets, shawls, blankets and hoods. Everything was pink.

"For it's to be a boy—Timothy by name," said Nora. It was then that Tim sprang up and uncorked a wine-bottle.

"Here's to little Tim Monahan!" he cried gayly.

For a moment the prospective mother hesitated. Then, raising her blue eyes steadily to her husband's black ones, she took up her glass.

"May he follow his father's steps and never get in a bog! Here's to big and little Tim!"

Tim studied her face for a moment; then, setting down his glass, he corked the bottle and pushed it across the table.

"Keep the rest till the boy's first birthday. We don't drink again till then."

Alas, however, it was hardly more than a fortnight later that the old horror came creeping back to haunt the Monahan home. Stumbling steps, coarse laughter, maudlin tears and the disgrace, felt more keenly because sometimes it was John Mullen who brought Tim home. John assured her that Tim was sowing only a few wild oats—that every young fellow must have his fling. Nora must not take it so hard, he said.

The emerald and rhinestone breastpin, which she was only to wear when he was "straight," lay long in its box, waiting for Tim to redeem his many and ardent pledges. The crystal candelabra wedding present from the Ladies' Shamrock Pleasure Club—and the glass-encased wax flower wreath—wedding present from Bartenders' Union, Local 97—followed the other luxuries to the pawnshop. One of the Monahan rooms was sublet, and the bed was transferred to the parlor-pantry-kitchen-dining-room-nursery. When little Tim was two months old it was evident that Nora must take up the bread-winning, if there was going to be any bread at all.

"The boy an' me are goin' to leave you to-day, Tim. I got a job at the Callahan Casino, takin' care of the lodge-rooms an' scrubbin' the halls an' ballroom. They'll let me have rooms an' board an' take the boy along—besides wages."

Tim's eyes flashed in astonishment and rage. After a moment he said slowly:

"You go whenever you want to, but you're crazy. You'll tired awful quick, for all the bluff you made. You don't get the kid, I vouch; I'm the father."

"You got another guess comin'. Looks like I got to be mother an' father both." Nora's voice was scornful.

Tim was all a-tremble from late dissipations. "It's easy enough for you to say give it up. Just you try it," he flung out savagely, sinking into a chair and bowing his head on his arms on the table in shame and despair.

"I ain't blamin' you none, Tim; you know I never did. You can't seem to help it; I see that."

"But you don't want the kid follerin' my steps is that it?"

"There's more to it than that. I'm goin' to help you. Us leavin' you's goin' to be your chance—you bein' crazy about the boy, an' seein' you ain't soured on me yet. If we hung on you, you'd get to hate us. But if we go 'way—why, absence makes the heart grow fonder. You're a-goin' to brace up to make a nice place for us, and when you ain't touched a drop for a year we're comin' back."

"A year!"

"A year."

"How'll you know?"

"You're comin' to tell us, an' we'll believe you, all right."

As Tim climbed the stairs to his home that evening he hoped against hope; but the room was desolate. The table was set for his supper, which was warm on the back of the stove, and a tear-stained little scrawl, full of love and faith, was tucked into a tiny knit baby shawl laid by his plate.

The man flung himself upon his bed in an agony of self-reproach, grief and dread. What would become of him? He lived over his fierce struggles with temptation and the gradual realization that it was stronger than he.

Nora could hardly believe her eyes when, a month later, her husband took to dropping in to Callahan's Casino, ostensibly on business with the managers. He had got a job as manager of a hotel, and he looked like another man. Nora marveled at the success of her plan. It was evident that he was not drinking and that he secretly hoped his year of probation would be shortened; but he talked of anything and everything but this bone. Nora learned from him of his activity in politics, but she did not know she had a secret ally, who "called off" the boys, and led Tim into the fascinating maze of ward campaigning for diversion and stimulus.

Though her back was lame with work, though her pride was hurt by her menial position, though her heart ached with suspense and loneliness, she always turned a brave and laughing face to Tim and the world. She and the baby were popular with the Casino managers, lodge-members and entertainment-give the wink to the barkeeper an' get me party in the rum glass."

"I'll be workin' for you here. I'll get the job in the lodge—"

"Do that."

"An' I'll get up a Women's Political League! Oh, I'm the modern woman all right."

The boss of the ward crowed delightfully at this juncture and pulled the dirty suds over his fresh white duck. The lodge woman sighed, as she tucked him under one arm with the mop under the other, and started upstairs.

"The new woman needs her old man pretty bad," she laughed. "Perhaps the alderman won't be having such as me."

"Better take no chances an' come home before the election."

He was handsome and strong as he stood looking up at her, and the tired wife was glad to slip down into his strong arms, baby, pail and all; but instead she threw him a kiss and made little mock wave "by-bye."

On election day it was John Mullen who led the way up the stairs of Callahan Hall, two at a time, and found Nora vigorously if abstract-mindedly applauding the band-stand.

"He's sure to be elected. They can't beat him, an' he's sober as a division."

As Nora looked into the radiant faces before her the thought struck her like a flash.

"John, it's you that's been doin' it all!"

"Me! Why, I ain't only got one vote."

"I ain't speakin' of the election only." She sank down on the edge of the platform and wiped her proud and happy eyes with the corner of her apron.

"You ought to be an alderwoman yourself."

"I ain't so popular as Tim, you know."

"You're sure popular with me, an' you're popular with Lucy Scanlan from what I'm hearin'! John, why not make it two weeks from Wednesday, an' we can have a sort of double weddin'."

"I always wanted to be married on the same day as you, Nora."

Nora rose and threw her two arms around her friend and best gentleman friend's neck, and gave him a hearty kiss on each cheek. As she laughingly dodged out of his reach again, she whirled about to meet her husband, standing still with astonishment and rage.

"Oh, Tim! Praise be to God the election is over,

Who knows and knows good what evil gets
The red-gist divine of his wrongs
Can conquer a pine and a fog and sky
And use vast space as there's board of close
With stars for pawns and hinge his horoscope
To suit his will turn fall to success
And from pre-ordained scarcity harvest joy

There's no pain-plot's snare in man
Or palace sign which can entice
The guiding life's true knight to bar
Upon events we mould that's our will

THE dawn of another season. Wildwood flowers and garden blooms will soon make their appearance among the greens that so beautifully adorn the home, the woodlands, the hills and plains. Like the flowers, the first premonition of the perfect bloom being seen in the tiny buds which gradually unfold new beauty each day until they are in full bloom. So it is with this spring opening. New things, new glimpses of style have sprung forth daily until our store has blossomed with the newest, the loveliest and most delightful lot of things that womankind could wish.

Although the greatest interest will be centered in our millinery and ready-to-wear sections, our entire store will present a true picture of "the awakening of spring." Undoubtedly no other part of woman's attire presents such attractive features or more strongly appeals to the feminine eye than millinery. To show completely and entirely all that is new and proper is one of our greatest pleasures. The most beautiful blossoms of the market, the loveliest creations of the world's handicraft, portraying traits of the clever and artistic designers of Paris, have been gathered for this style function.

And so this applies to our ready-to-wear apparel, our piece goods and our novelties. It is to show you the results of our efforts to provide for the people of this community, to clearly demonstrate and fulfil the assertions of this, the past and future announcements, that we so earnestly request the pleasure of your presence on Tuesday or Wednesday afternoon.

THE PASSING of STEAM

Its Place May Be Taken by the Gas Engine Rapid Development of the New Idea Due Largely to the Wasteful Consumption of Coal Special Tests Made by the Government Have Furnished Important Data Twenty Companies Now Making Gas Producers for Power Purposes

—Washington Correspondence Boston Transcript

ALMOST as wild as the dream of the steam engine itself is the conclusion of modern science that before long even steam may be done away with on the great railway systems of the country. The tendency toward centralization is observable no less in relation to power than to the instruments of business. Great impetus has been given to the movement in power development and distribution of power gas. When it is considered that the fuel [illegible] created by steam power yields less than per cent of its available energy in useful work, the stimulus to study for a more effective means of power production is at once apparent. The superintendent of one of the most efficient steam plants in existence today estimates that the utilized energy of the whole establishment operating for a year amounts to only about 10 per cent a sheer loss of 90 per cent of fuel and power. It is this wasteful consumption of coal whose very existence is limited to a few hundred years, that has brought about the rapid development of the gas engine and [illegible] [illegible] estimated [illegible] [illegible] per cent of the [illegible] fuel consumption. The importance of this [illegible] the knowledge that this 25 per cent would represent an increase of 100 per cent in the power [illegible] of our manufacturing establishments.

The gas engine came into general use in the latter part of the nineteenth century, but large engines of this type have been constructed only during the last five or six years. Recent developments indicate that the replacement of steam engines by producer-gas plants is destined to be one of the most [illegible] factors in the economical production of power for manufacturing and transportation purposes, the other being centralization of power production and distribution.

Seven Years Ago.

For a long time the natural fuel of these internal combustion engines was city gas, but that was too expensive except for engines of small capacity. Cheap gas was a desideratum for the development of the engine, but the early attempts to produce it were somewhat discouraging. The theoretical possibilities of the [illegible] engine [illegible] [illegible] of much however that [illegible] which seemed almost insurmountable has been overcome, and as a result of improvement in the production of heat gas direct from fuel through the aid of the gas producer, the development of large sized gas engine has been exceedingly rapid. Only seven years ago a 600-horsepower gas engine exhibited at the Paris exposition was regarded as a wonder; today four-cycle twin-tandem double-acting engines run as high as 8,000-horsepower.

In view of the possibility that the gas engine with its gas producer may displace the steam engine, the fuel problem became so important that the government made special provision for producer-gas tests at its fuel-testing plant installed in connection with the exposition at St. Louis. These tests have furnished valuable data on the relative consumption of coal per horsepower per hour when used by the steam plant and by the gas plant. By means of the producer-gas plant which was installed in 1904, 162 tests have been made on bituminous coals, lignites and peats from 26 states. The results of these tests and a discussion of the present status of the producer-gas power plant in the United States, prepared by Mr. Robert Heywood Fernald, have [illegible] by and the [illegible] the United States Geological survey in bulletin No. 316, which forms Part II of Contributions to Economic Geology, 1906.

The Gas Producer

All of the tests whether on bituminous coal, lignite or peat, were made on a producer of one size and type, a type designed primarily for use with anthracite coal—and with every coal that was run through the producer the results were more than satisfactory. Especially noteworthy is the fact that several low-grade coals and lignites that have proved of little value or even worthless under the steam boiler gave excellent results in the gas producer.

About 20 companies in the United States are manufacturing gas producers for power purposes. At least 12 of these are fully established on a commercial basis and are in a position to give proper guarantees when installing plants. Over 300 gas-producer power plants, ranging in size from 20 to 6,000 horsepower, are now in operation in the United States. One company alone reports 20-odd installations averaging over 2,000 horsepower each, and nearly as many more of about the same size, contracted for or now being erected. The [illegible] of installations already led the National Board of Fire Underwriters to issue special rules and requirements for the construction, installation and use of coal gas producers (pressure and suction systems). Of the total installations about two-thirds are suction plants operating on anthracite coal, a few using charcoal. Bituminous coal is used in 15 to 20 per cent of the plants installed, but this proportion probably covers 65 to 75 per cent of the aggregate horsepower rating.

"The situation as a whole at the present time," says Mr. Fernald, "seems to be very favorable for the gas-producer plant not only as to cost of installation but also as to reliability. The successful demonstration at the government fuel-testing plant that bituminous coals, lignites and peat can be utilized with great economy in these plants should lead to an increase in the use of this form of power in a few years that may surpass even the most sanguine hopes of the manufacturers.

Of the centralization of power development and distribution Mr. Fernald says: "It would seem ridiculous to predict the immediate doom of the steam locomotive, yet one of the officials of the New York Central railroad has publicly stated that within [illegible] there will be no steam locomotives operating on the New York Central road. Already the New York Central has substituted electric for steam power on its line from New York city to a point about 40 miles from Grand Central station, and it is rumored that before long electric engines will be running on this road from New York to Buffalo. The rapid changes are leading to one end—the centralization of power development and distribution. Now that it is commercially possible to transmit electrical power for distances of 200 miles or more, a central plant could distribute such electric current for a distance of 600 miles, that is, for 200 miles on all sides of the plant—thus covering a circle comprising almost 200,000 square miles—an area nearly four times the size of the state of Illinois. The logical location of such a plant is at or near the mines. With 10 or 12 of these great central plants located at the various mining centers, the great railroads of the United States can send their trains speeding from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and the passengers, as well as the towns through which the trains pass, will be entirely freed from the usual annoyance of smoke and cinders and the disastrous fires caused by sparks from locomotives. [illegible] a thing of the past.

Pappy's Plan of Salvation

By Mrs. L. H. Harris

(Copyright)

MARTHA was a little, wizened, apple-cheeked woman who had an exciting life because she was Pappy Corn's wife. Husband and a pair of absurdly arched brows added to this expression of uncertainty. Summer and winter she wore a little plaid shawl pinned beneath her chin and kept her nerves prepared for the worst that Pappy could do with a plentiful use of snuff. But, notwithstanding this antidote for excitement, her ancient wrinkles of astonishment deepened into consternation one morning when she hurried out to meet her husband, just returned from his weekly trip to Bug Ridge. He was perched high upon the driver's seat, with his short, thin legs braced against the dashboard. His whiskers spread out like a white frill beneath his clean-shaven chin, his mouth twitched dryly as Martha approached, and the light of his small, bright eyes rested upon her quizzically like two azure beams of humor. Suddenly she drew back and threw her hands over her head. She had caught sight of an elegantly dressed young man lying in the bottom of the coach with closed eyes and pallid face.

"Oh, pappy! What yo' mean comin' home with er dead man!" she exclaimed.

"Don't git skeert, Marthy, he hain't dead; jest fer gone in his trespasses an' sins," he explained, climbing down and peering cheerfully at his victim.

"If our son Sol lived he'd be erbout the age of him. That's now come over me, ter think er bringin' him up here ter wean."

"Ter wean! What yo' mean, talkin' erbout weanin' er grown man?"

"From drink, Marthy," he air soakin' full of it."

"Yo' hev kill him," she wailed.

"He hain't dead, I tell yo', just flunk er fit back than on th' road. I wish I be glad he done git hein' wore out fightin' snakes fer him an' drivin' at th' same time."

"Pappy!" exclaimed Martha, whose anxiety took a new turn, "hev yo' brung er man up here with th' delirium trembles?"

"That's exactly what I done, Marthy. The Methodist conference met at Blue Ridge last week. This here John Cleghorn were one of the young preachers in hit. Jest 'cause they turned him out for gettin' drunk an' hiccoughin' while he were preachin'. They wer fer gettin' rid of him afore he spiled th' holy representation of they church. An' I reckon they done right, fer church hev ter be ez perticklar ez er Pharisee erbout 'sociatin' with publicans an' sinners. Yer you' know I hain't got no reperation fer piety ter take keer of, so seein' him fixin' ter hit th' bottom, an' not one of th'm gold-dern preachers raisin' er hand ter save him, I 'lowed I'd bring him up here an' see if we couldn't sweat some of th' devilment outen him."

In the afternoon of this same day Cleghorn opened his eyes with a sigh of exhaustion and regarded the two figures seated beside the bed with rational interest. The absolute silence, the prim whiteness of Mthara's company-room, the two old brownies seated beside his bed were all incredible to him.

"Yo' lay still, son," crooned the old man brownie. "We had er time gittin' the devil outen yo' an' hit left yo' powerful weak. But yo' air sho ter strengthen up soon, fer yo' hev drunk five quarts of sweet milk terday. Marthy mighty right stripped th' gall bladder outen! Spicey gittin' hit, an' that ole cow sig rarin' 'round th' cuppin with her tail twisted at th' injustice of hein' milked four times in one day. Yo' air plum full, son. Twouldn't s'prise me ter see yo' sweat cream!"

"Shet up, Pappy, afore yo' turn his stomick ergin!" commanded Martha. "An' yo' ontie his legs too! she continued, "he's thet weak he can't cervort no more."

Cleghorn closed his eyes and groaned with mortification.

"Mighty weak in th' poodle!" commented Pappy, who was determined not to observe the delicacies of the situation.

"Yo' let him be, Pappy!" retorted Martha, who always adopted her husband's quondam children with maternal fierceness.

Cleghorn's condition was indeed serious, for it was one thing to recover gradually from a case of delirium tremens, cared for by a physician who gave the proper amount of stimulants, and quite another according to the abstemious measures of a Brassytown Valley reformer.

But on the evening of the following day Pappy found him seated on the bench outside the door when he returned from the field. Martha's high treble rouse with piercing melody inside the house.

"She didn't sung that hymn since our little boy died. Yo're bein' here pulls her in mind of him," he remarked confidentially.

"But why am I here?" asked Cleghorn, who had no recollection of events after the closing scenes in the conference room where he had been "silenced" by the bishop and deprived of his credentials.

"I brung yo' up here, son," Pappy sat down beside him prepared to go into particulars.

"Your church fellers done jerped yo' an' 'peared thy gittin' on ez spree. Now yo' hain't hatred none of this valley. Hit's jest ez little green beds nestled outen th' tops of th' Blue Ridge ez allus. Yo' hain't got no call ter preach, an' th' times of the peace. We have one and I'm thinkin' religion is immortal'zing ez election fer some folks, an' predestination fer all. An' that's hell an' damnation which promise free salvation. So kin take yo'r choice. Still I'll say Brassytown valley hev th' speret of Will. I don't keer much for it, Arminian, nur this little valley de Calvin, of grace, now don't it?" He paused and eyed Cleghorn with a look of cold and wily shrewdness. "But anyhow de world, yo' kin see, hev tried, they say, in the last with the Divine Wisdom, they say, an' the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. Now, I'm a old man, an' I hain't never had no 'casion ter preach, but I'm a old man, an' I hain't never had no 'casion ter preach, but I'm a old man, an' I hain't never had no 'casion ter preach, but

A PROJECT which has always more or less interested the intelligent theater-goer is that of the New Theater movement, which has been tried in Chicago and is about to be tried in New York, where a great theater is being erected by endowment for this use. This movement has been agitated for a long time, and was finally tried last season by Victor Mapes, who managed a new theater in Chicago, under the patronage and endowment of some of the rich folks of that city. Mapes' theater failed, the reasons of which were not hard to find. The plays put on, with a few exceptions were not of the class wanted by the patrons of high art; the company was mediocre; the theater small and uncomfortable; the stage inadequate and the productions never produced up to the standard usually maintained by traveling companies. The latter fact was perhaps the real reason for the failure. It is a hard proposition to draw the public to the theater at anytime to see the literature plays, that is the dramas of Shakespeare, Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Sudermann, Hauptmann, and others of the same class, and can never be done unless the best of players, staging and other essentials are present. When these are absent, no one cares to see the production, for nothing is worse than a literature play badly acted and produced. Hence, as Mapes gave the Chicago public productions not up to the standard that was exacted from the average traveling company, while the public expected better and finer productions, his project failed, and he laid it to the fault of the movement and not to himself.

That a movement of this sort could be made a success can be seen from the fact of Mrs. Fiske's success this season in Ibsen's "Rosmersholm." Alla Nazimova's long New York season of almost two years, presenting only Ibsen and other plays of the same type, is another example that if the new theater movement is run by capable hands, and good players in the company, it can be made a success.

At present a large group of New York millionaires have subscribed enough money to erect a magnificent theater in that city to be called the "New Theater," and to be devoted to that purpose. According to present plans a company of only the finest players on the American and foreign stages will be assembled. The theater will be under the direction of a man who knows his business, and is capable to run the theater for art and not for money. The theater itself will be one of the finest in the country, occupying an entire block, and having the same imposing appearance that all of the better theaters abroad have, not being tucked off in an insignificant corner as the Americans are wont to do their amusement houses. The New Theater will have all of the improvements of the American and foreign theaters. The comfort of players and patrons alike will be looked after. The endowers have supplied all the money needed so there will be no need of crushing out art to make dollars.

De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland" is the chief divertisement of the present week. He comes here after an absence of over three years, and will be greeted by a capacity audience. His opera, "Happyland" is by Reginald De Koven. The music is said to be decidedly above the musical comedy order. Hopper's company includes Marguerite Clarke, who has been with him for several years, and who will blossom out as a star next season. The remainder of the company is said to be excellent. "Painting the Town" and "Buster Brown," both having been seen in this city on former occasions will be other amusements.

In the past week "Brewsters Millions," an interesting and bright comedy, with a splendid setting, was the most interesting feature. Creston Clarke, an actor of ability, in a play of interest, had only a small audience, although he deserved a better one.

THE WEEK'S OFFERINGS

Monday, "HAPPYLAND."

De Wolf Hopper and Marguerite Clarke, with a strong supporting company will be heard in this De Koven comic opera tomorrow evening, at the Opera House. The play tells of a king who tires of happiness and in order to be relieved of it starts trouble in his kingdom.

Friday, "PAINTING THE TOWN."

This is one of Charles H. Yale's productions and is on the order of "The Devil's Auction," though not quite so old, and therefore more entertaining. There are about two dozen stage settings, and a large company. This is its second year on the road.

Saturday, "BUSTER BROWN."

This well known musical comedy, having for its principal character that of a popular cartoon character, is to be out, will be seen here Saturday. The book has been rewritten, and new songs added, so that the production contains novelties. The company is also new and large.

MME. LILLIAN BLAUVELT

Grand Opera Singer Who Will Give a Concert in This City at the Opera House on March 20, Assisted by Miss Edith Kellogg, Pianist, and Albert Rosenthal, Violoncellist.

To Be Seen Here

Robert Mantell and his wife, Miss Marie Booth Russell, who is his leading woman on the stage, as well as private life, were given a reception on February 7 by the Ladies' Literary society of Grand Rapids, Mich., the occasion being the anniversary of Mantell's fifty-fourth birthday.

An offer has been made to Henrietta Crosman to occupy a New York theater permanently and to produce there a series of plays. If accepted the theater would be placed under the direction of Maurice Campbell, who would make the productions. The project would begin with the opening of next season.

Marguerite Clarke, De Wolf Hopper's piquant assistant, desired to catch a train in a small Pennsylvania town, and to that end paid the proprietor of a coal wagon $3.40 to take her to the station. They drew up to the station with a flourish—or with as much of a flourish as a coal wagon can make—with but one minute to spare. And the train was three hours late!

A correspondent to the Billboard, a weekly theatrical paper, from Victor, Colo., makes the wonderful statement that Florence Roberts, who has for such a long time worshipped at the altar of Tears and Emotions, played "Coming Thro' the Rye" in that city. It is true that Miss Roberts is now appearing in "Sham," a modern comedy, but she has not so far forsaken high art as to appear in a musical comedy.

Albert Rosenthal, violoncellist with the Blauvelt company, is known both in this country and abroad. This season he has appeared with some of the leading instrumentalists and vocalists in Boston, New York and Philadelphia. He has received considerable mention on account of his excellent solo and obligato work. After ending his season with Mme. Blauvelt Mr. Rosenthal will return to Europe to prepare for his extensive tour of this country next season alone.

A letter signed "Gertrude" was received by the Chicago Tribune asking the age of John Drew. The critic, ever obliging, has discovered that Drew has "become" fifty-five years of age, having been born in Philadelphia in 1853. The critic continues: "Drew has worked hard and to a good purpose on the age every year since he was twenty, when he made his debut in a farce, playing Plumper in Charles Mathew's 'Cool as a Cucumber' in Augustin Daly's company. He went to New York in 1879, having been discovered by Augustin Daly. In Daly's he soon became a leading man of Daly's [illegible] and continued in it [illegible] when Daly died in 1899. Then [illegible] Drew [illegible]

What Press Agents Say

DE WOLF HOPPER IN "HAPPYLAND"

One of the real events of the theatrical season here, if the word of critics and audiences everywhere may be counted upon is the appearance of De Wolf Hopper at the Opera House tomorrow evening in his comic opera success entitled "Happyland." This latest production in which America's foremost musical comedy star is appearing, is classed along with "Wang" as a success. In other words, it is measured up to merit and popularity with this other hit of Mr. Hopper's career, and it is also said of "Happyland" that while it is as tuneful and laughable as "Wang" ever was, it is a vastly more elaborate and beautiful production from a scenic viewpoint.

"Happyland" is presented here by the auspices of the Shuberts, a guarantee that carries with it a knowledge of generosity in expenditure and perfect taste in the making of scenic equipment. The story in brief is as follows: It is Utopia, a place where the people are surrounded with pleasures of every kind. There is an old king, one Bobadilus, a past player, but Mr. Hopper's make-up is unrecognizable. He has nothing but happiness on every side. But trouble comes to him in unexpected forms and he soon gets his heart's desire, that of being miserable.

Throughout the play there is a story of compelling interest, and while everything is graced and brightened with laughs that do the soul good, there is also enough of the picturesque and romantic in the story to steady and dignify the play. It is a great novelty in the way of character drawing. From the part played by Mr. Hopper down to the roles of minor note, there is to be seen the same novelty of conception and effectiveness in action of the various characters. The music is said by those who have heard it, to be in Reginald De Koven's happiest and most typical vein. Many of the songs from "Happyland" are sung and whistled nationally as might be so expected. And as to the story of the play, perhaps nothing better could be said than that it is declared to be the best product of Frederic Ranken's pen.

The same cast and production—with De Wolf Hopper and fairy Marguerite Clark in the center of a notable array of actors—will be seen here that delighted capacity audiences at the Lyric theater in New York, and that played to immense patronage in Chicago, Boston, Baltimore, Washington and St. Louis.

"PAINTING THE TOWN."

Charles H. Yale's "Painting the Town," the new musical play which proved to be one of the notable successes of last year, and which comes to the Opera House on next Friday night as a polite combination of operatic comedy, specialties, ballet and pantomime, with a usually large number of handsome scenes, startling mechanical features, gorgeous costuming and the latest novelties in dancing, singing and effects, is having the aid of the managements in presenting "Painting the Town" to obtain for it the smashing get of the general run in musical comedy, and nothing has been left undone that showy stage ability or liberal outlay could cause to effect this end.

The story of "Painting the Town" is largely laid at Normandy farm, [illegible] while the comedy complications will appeal at once to those who enjoy a hearty laugh.

The music, which has been especially composed for the piece, is new and original, ranging from grand opera to the ever welcome "ensemble number," and of that quality which insures an immediate singing or whistling success. A most novel singing and dancing feature has been prepared in an ensemble number requiring the entire force of the company, entitled "The Emigrants" and depicts in pantomime, dance and song, the arrival in this country of groups of emigrants who, costumed in the various dress of their various countries present a most interesting character study.

Other features offered in the new musical novelty include a concerted railroad number, and the production in the second act of a very funny travesty on grand opera. The opera is given with all the dignity, care and attention as to detail of a grand opera production, with special scenery, costumes and a grand operatic cast, and is bound to create a sensation.

Special attention has been given to the arrangement of the ballets, dancing numbers, groupings and ensembles, while the costumes used in the entire production are by Van Horn of New York and are described as a perfect riot of color. The music and general arrangement of the entire affair is most artistic. The scenic surroundings and mechanical effects are most elaborate and unusual, and among the principal settings are the surrounding railroad station with all the hustle and bustle of that busy location; the dressing rooms of the Folie Music Hall—most loved scene of the stage of the Folie Music Hall, with operatic production in full regalia; the palace of Ram Jam, a spectacular set; the Folie Cafe; the scene on the Roofs, a most unique conception; the Grand Banquet Hall and others.

A new, notable and costly feature has been prepared for this season's production in the presentation of "Utopia, pia," a most elaborate spectacular dancing number, introducing Miss Mazie King, the "World's Greatest Dancer." In "Utopia," the Lyric has been reached in scenic surroundings and electrical effects. Among the many novel and beautiful scenes presented are "The Garden of Roses," "The Winter Palace," and a magnificent reproduction of the Falls of Niagara in all its grandeur, Miss King appearing in this scene as "The Maid of the Mist."

MADAME LILLIAN BLAUVELT

Madame Blauvelt, the American prima donna soprano, can boast of more decorations and medals from royalty and from ancient musical societies of the old world than probably any other American singer. She has jeweled medals from Queen Victoria and from Queen Margherita of Italy, but the honor that she most prizes is the decoration conferred upon her by the Order of St. Cecelia. This order is the oldest musical organization in the world. The Royal Academy of St. Cecelia was founded in Rome in 1585. It is a very limited order and in its whole 318 years of existence only eight persons have been honored with its decoration. Mme. Blauvelt is the eighth person to be thus honored. She is the only English speaking person and the only woman who ever received the decoration. When the decoration was conferred upon her she also received the honor of having her name engraved upon the walls of the academy.

The decoration from Queen Margherita was conferred upon her in 1895. In that year, Mme. Blauvelt went to Rome to study the Italian language. While there she heard that the soprano that had been engaged to sing the Manzoni requiem was taken ill. She volunteered her services, learned the part in Latin in four days, and acquitted herself with so much distinction that she attracted the attention of the queen, who commanded her to sing at the Quirinal. After this event, Queen Margherita presented her with an autographed photograph framed in Roman parchment, and the jeweled medallion. Queen Victoria commanded her to appear before her at Buckingham palace in a state concert in June, 1899. This was followed by an appearance before the queen in Windsor castle, after which her majesty presented the American singer with a beautiful jeweled locket.

Mme. Blauvelt has been one of the most successful among American singers who sought fame in Europe. She has appeared in all the capitals, and in all the leading operas, new and old. Aside from this, she has made several concert tours of America. At present she is arranging such a tour from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This tour will end in May, when she goes abroad to play for three years in grand opera in London, Berlin and Vienna. She will visit this city in March and will play at the Opera House under the auspices of Charles R. Hall. Mme. Blauvelt was formerly Lillian Evans of Brooklyn. Her ancestors were of mixed Dutch and Welsh stock and were among the first settlers of Manhattan island.

"BUSTER BROWN" COMING

Fun will reign supreme at the Opera House, where on next Saturday "Buster Brown" will appear matinee and night. Innocent little "Buster" starts the ball rolling as soon as he puts in an appearance, and it gains in speed until at the end his auditors having had their capacity for laughing fully tested, are glad of the rest that the finish makes possible. Since its last presentation here the play has been rewritten and the promise is made that it is now funnier than ever. In addition to the improved book the music is new in its entirety, the scenery

Ahead at 75 cents, so Mr. Sothern bought out the entire second balcony for both afternoons and sold seats at 50 cents.

Daily a few days later, "but I am going to leave you."

"What-a-at?" gasped Daly, with one of his best How-can-you-frowns.

"Mr. Frohman has offered to star me, and—"

"And what?"

"And to double my salary. Of course I don't expect that much from you, but—but if I am worth $50 a week to Frohman I should be worth more than $250 a week to Daly."

"It is recorded that Daly, literally speechless at this display of independence, turned on his heel and walked away. The next spring Mr. Drew became a Frohman star and has remained faithful to the manager, who has been faithful to him ever since."

"I was not originally intended for a hilarious stage existence," said De Wolf Hopper recently. "No, far from it. I was destined for forensic fame, set out to sway judge and jury by the witchery of my eloquence, so to speak. In fact, I did begin the study of law in the office of Joseph H. Choate, who took me because he was a life-long friend of my father. I doubt if I have enough of the sympathetic element in my most reliable auditor as I say [illegible] lawyer, although his big voice of course should have carried weight. I will not say conviction—with the jury.

"About that time I began to think that I would make a good matinee idol. I don't know where I got that idea, as I have never cherished the illusion that I possess any facial charm. Nevertheless I yielded to temptation and opportunity and engaged with Edward Harrigan to play the juvenile role in 'The Blackbird' at the Theater Comique, that stood on the site of the later Streets of Old London. It was my first offense and I was proud of it. My mother was there the opening night. I was highly elated, and after the performance I rushed to her for congratulations.

"'I was a success, wasn't I?' I asked eagerly.

"'I suppose so,' she replied. She is one of those women who could not possibly tell a lie or cloak her real thoughts even to please her best friend. 'But, Will,' she added (my name is William De Wolf Hopper, you know) 'I think it would have been better if you had continued studying law.'

"However, she subsequently became my most reliable auditor and my most severe critic. She always goes to see me play, and she invariably tells me what she thinks of it. She is an old lady now, but she is still steadfast in seeing every one of my first performances, and it is always a great pleasure for me to know that she is in the front. She saw 'El Capitan' more than 200 times and is still in good health, even after as big a dose as 'Wang.'"

E. H. Sothern opened a rival box office in the lobby of the Majestic theater in Boston recently, entering into [illegible] with the hours in which he is playing. The [illegible] insisted [illegible] For nec- [illegible]

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in the medical profession. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been searching for the reason and the cause of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be created. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Dr. Knowlton's Danderine has the power to penetrate to the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or fluids of the scalp.

It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life producing qualities.

One 25 cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

SOCIETY TOTS IN BLANKET SUITS

From the New York Press.

New York society mammas have borrowed at least one good idea from their Canadians cousins, and that is to dress their youngsters for winter sports in the blanket suit that still in juvenile size gives such a picturesque touch to almost all the rink of the Dominion. Now in sensible yet attractive forms of dress for the cold season have been designed. The suit as its name implies is made from an extra large double blanket. A great many yards are required even for a little child, the suit must be roomy. It consists simply of an ample tunic reaching well

S.S.S. RUNS THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Even in its early stages Catarrh is a most distressing ailment, caused by the stuffy feeling in the head, ringing noises in the ears, watery eyes, difficult breathing, continual "hawking and spitting," etc., but when the blood becomes thoroughly saturated with the impurities which produce the disease it becomes a serious and often dangerous disorder. Then the bronchial tubes are attacked, the bladder and kidneys diseased, and often the lungs become affected by the constant passage of impure blood through them and Catarrh terminates in Consumption. The impurities and poisons in the blood which produce Catarrh can never be removed through the use of sprays, inhalations, washes, etc. Such treatment cannot reach the real cause, and their use alone should never be depended on to cure the disease. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impure catarrhal matter. It goes down and attacks the disease at its head, in the circulation, and removes every trace of the impurity that is causing the trouble. When the rich, purified blood is carried to all parts of the system the symptoms gradually leave, the health is improved, and S. S. S. makes a permanent cure of the trouble. Discouraged? Down on Your Luck?

Well, there's no use giving up and publishing the fact all over yourself in scare headlines.

Sitting around waiting for something to turn up never got you anything yet but the blues.

You know the way out of the woods, don't you?

Gazette Classified Want Ads and Repeat.

They've "sidetracked the finish" of many a man who thought he was down and out.

So hit the trail and do it quick, before any more of your nerve oozes out of your finger tips.

Pick out a "want ad" and answer it—then another and another and hunt down a job if you have to answer every "want ad" in the paper.

Do it over again tomorrow and the next day. Don't give up those "want ads" till you strike your job. That's the only way to get what you want in this world—stick to it till it's yours.

And as a guide, you will find the Gazette Want Ads the best that ever blazed a trail.

A STOCK RANCH WITH ALL THE ADVANTAGES OF A FARM

PLENTY OF SOIL TO CULTIVATE.
PLENTY OF WATER TO IRRIGATE.

There are 2,560 acres, deeded land, 640 acres of leased school land, thousands of acres of open grazing land. The improvements consist of one 6-room cottage house, one three-room farm house, large barns, corrals, fences, etc. Several hundred acres of this land is in crops and hay and raises abundant crops every year. It is well worth $15 per acre for the entire ranch, but we take it so we throw in a nice herd of high-grade Hereford stock; possession for all purposes.

All crops harvested and remaining on the place at time of sale, chickens, turkeys, hogs, and in fact everything except the furniture in the houses go with the place.

This ranch can be [illegible] for [illegible] cash, [illegible] to the mountains, is in the Pikes Peak [illegible] and [illegible] scenery, and we can make a price, including everything, of only $14 per acre.

A SNAP IN A COLORADO RANCH

Situated near a good town with several good stores, two trunk line railroads make good shipping facilities. This ranch contains four hundred and forty (440) acres, one hundred and twenty five acres of which is cultivated in wheat, oats, rye and barley. Last year there was raised on the ranch 37 bushels of oats per acre, 20 bushels of spring wheat, and 17 bushels of winter wheat per acre without irrigation. There is $1,500 worth of standing timber on the place. Has a seven (7) room good house with sheds and corrals for stock; is well watered, with several large living springs of pure soft water. Cuts some hay.

THE PRICE IS $10 PER ACRE

The Indian and His Lands

The White Man Is Trying to Make the Indian See the Good of Self-Support, and Many Are Trying to Learn How to Accomplish It.

(Frederic J. Haskin, [illegible] News.)

With a [illegible] refusing [illegible] Ramapo's ghost, to [illegible] the government [illegible] its three centuries' old problem of making a contented and [illegible] citizen of every member of the [illegible] Indian race. When the Uintah reservation was opened for settlement [illegible] there were given allotments of good land [illegible] encouraged to adopt the habits [illegible] industries of their white neighbors. Many settled down as bidden, [illegible] cheap hands, used only to the [illegible] existence, took up the pick and [illegible] modern civilization decreed [illegible] set forth about mastering their [illegible] citizenship.

Not so with the White River Utes. They watched with [illegible] the building of irrigation [illegible] and the building of homes for the white man, and they grew more and more resentful. For a year they saved their supplies and money, and then, 200 strong, set out one day for the Black Hills of South Dakota, where hunting grounds were believed to lie, and where they could spend the rest of their days in peace from the white man and his civilizing influence. The reports are flying quickly of Washington Hysterical ranchers foresaw the massacre of their families and the confiscation of their cattle. The commissioner of Indian affairs saw further need for the display of his admirable tact in making the Indians understand the benefits to the interest of the government. The farseeing, romantic lovers of the Indian saw another instance of a doomed people drifting through the [illegible] of a poverty-stricken [illegible] and hunger had hastened them into the eternal happy hunting ground. The soldiers of a nearby post saw a series of fiendish murders and a [illegible] of ticklish police work in the most severe weather in order to avert a frontier war.

What the Indians Want.

The hysteria of the [illegible] was appeased for awhile when the agents who had been hurried there pointed out that the Indians had taken no thing except wild game, and that the [illegible] of the game was [illegible] The [illegible] cows were shown [illegible] the lands set aside for the Indians were among the best in the reservation, and the government had already [illegible] them an expensive system of irrigation. The Indians simply [illegible] They did not want to [illegible] the white man's ways. They wanted only to be allowed to go on [illegible] and [illegible] undisturbed, and they had set up their tepees in a new hunting ground.

They argued that they were American citizens, for had not the agent said so when he was arranging to [illegible] their exemplary lives creditable to [illegible] country? Since they were Americans they meant to exercise their rights [illegible] come and go across the country as well. The fact that they were invading the reservation of other Indians, had no weight with them. They believed their own lands were taken away fraudulently. The treaty of 1868 provides that any session of land by the Indians to the general government is valid only when the agreement is signed by three-fourths of the adult members of the tribe. They claim that many of their signatures were obtained through a species of coercion. Not understanding things, they grew agitated, collected their ponies and cattle and set their faces toward the Black Hills.

Soldiers sent against the Indians are said to go with reluctance, for companionship with the winds, the hills and the sky have somehow taught them to understand these children of the [illegible] than other observers. When Captain Carter P. Johnson was sent against this tribe of migrating Utes to hold them at Thunder Butte until they could be prevailed upon to return, he counseled patience and greater tact on the part of the white people. He said: "One hundred pounds of flour and a little patience are a more potent factor in the solution of this problem than one hundred soldiers." The government plan to-day is to begin "Work or starve," and with endless patience the commissioner and his co-workers have secured work on railways and irrigation projects for the Utes; but they have disdained it. Not only do they care little for work, but a people who have lived for successive generations on an arid plain, untrained in the industrial arts, are slow at learning how to work.

Oklahoma's Indians.

The red men in the new state of Oklahoma have proved the possibilities of the Indian's friendly affiliation with the white man. Their ideas have changed some since 1818. In that year, when the government offered to give the Cherokees a strip of land across the Mississippi in exchange for their Georgia lands, an old chief urged the acceptance of the offer on the ground that the Cherokee or white man with a Cherokee family can live among such people as the first settlers of our territory." The majority of the 230,000 Indians now in the United States have seen this disposed and have learned much from the white neighbors, who have come from time to time to share their lands. The Quinnipiacs, Utes, Apaches of White River and the Flatheads of Montana have not learned this lesson, and the government is having a [illegible] time [illegible] it.

The Indians have watched their boundary lines shrink [illegible] and closer about them since they have been on their government given reservations, just as their people before them saw an irresistible and never fully defined boundary line push them ever toward the west. When citizenship came, the number of Indians in the confines of what is now the United States is said to have been between 8,000 and 500,000. Today there are less than half that many. These Indians practically owned the whole country, an extent of 3,000,000 square miles. Today the Indians own in severalty or as communities on the reservations one thirty-fifth of this, 282 "civilized" [illegible] prior to 1871, and scores of "agreements" since, separating them from their surplus lands and opening up those lands to white settlement, to prospectors, to their number can [illegible] Indian lands on an average about [illegible] for every man, woman and child [illegible] person in America, white or black, old settler or newly arrived immigrant, if all the remaining land were divided up per capita parcels, would have about 2.000 acres. Besides lands and incomes from these lands, the Indians have a fund of $26,000,000 in the United States treasury, yielding an annual income of about $1,000,000.

Acquisition of Indian Lands.

From the time Powhatan was forcibly made to kneel to receive the crown sent by England's king, and later to subscribe to treaties regarding his holdings, the governments of colony and republic have been kept busy bargaining with the Indians for their lands. In 1763 the line marking the boundary between the white and Indian lands might have been roughly drawn from the center of New York southward to follow the western boundaries of the Carolinas and then deflect eastward to almost touch the coast in Georgia and Florida. By 1795 the classic boundary had slipped westward until the Ohio and the Cumberland rivers were the limit, and then successive years of progress wiped the frontier from the map of the United States, and now only small splashes of color in 15 states west of the Mississippi and in two east mark the places where the tribes have at last been persuaded to settle down after the white man's fashion.

Jefferson was the first president to encourage active steps in the acquisition of Indian lands for white settlement. The Indian Territory of Jackson's day was the answer to his wish. Sometimes the Indians asked permission to go further west before the white people negotiated for their lands. In 1829 the six nations of New York petitioned congress in stately terms, beginning: "Fathers, we, your children, being chiefs and principal men of the following tribes," and asking permission to go west to some lands they had bought from Michigan Indians, averring that they could not lead the good lives they wished because of the bad influence of their white neighbors.

The Indians have suffered much at the hands of the white frontiersmen, [illegible] rights of equity and personal rights often given sadly blunted as civilization and churches were left behind. More than once these frontiersmen have proved bigger than the Department of the Interior, and the Indian and his lands have suffered. In 1871, when the Osages were being moved from Kansas to the Indian territory, 500 whites rushed in ahead, seized the lands and refused to let the Indians enter. When the War department sent out to expel these illegal sooners, there were 1,500 who reluctantly departed—and watched for the next Indian removal.

The easier method of taking care of the Indians was to round them up on their reservations—whither they had taken refuge when fleeing the white man's spelling book, steam engine, giant reaper and other outward evidences of civilization—and pauperize him by giving him food and clothes. The present commissioner is trying to make them see the [illegible] of self-support, and many are trying to learn how to accomplish it. [illegible] doing of each new responsible thing [illegible] persons, as has that of the Utes, [illegible] when a part of the Ba[illegible] Dakota [illegible] on [illegible] it.

THE GREATEST RIVER TRADE

Detroit River Trade Is the Greatest in the World, While the Soo Canal Takes Second Place.

(William E. Curtis, in Chicago Record-Herald.)

The Detroit river is the greatest water highway in the world.

During the late season of navigation 29,721 vessels passed through it, with a tonnage of 48,958,328, as compared with 24,077 vessels of 48,017,688 tons in 1906. This shows that the lake vessels are growing larger, as well as the volume of business.

The merchandise traffic of 1907 through the Detroit river amounted to 87,292,501 net tons, compared with 69,378,155 net tons for 1906.

Of this total 46,966,191 tons represented iron ore, lumber and grain from the northwest, southbound to Buffalo and other Lake Erie ports, of which 35,405,586 tons were iron ore. The northbound traffic represented 20,326,311 net tons, of which 18,427,121 net tons was coal from the mines of Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Excepting the Detroit river, the Sault Ste. Marie canal is the greatest waterthoroughfare in the world. An average of one steamer every 12 minutes passes through day and night, carrying more freight than enters the harbors of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Charleston and Savannah combined; more than enters London, Southampton and Liverpool combined; more than the tonnage of the Suez, Manchester, Kiel, Amsterdam, Corinth and all the other great canals of the world combined.

The Soo Canal.

There is no other basis of comparison.

In 1851 the freight traffic through the Soo canal was 1,567,745 tons.

In 1886 it was 4,507,799 tons.

In 1891 it was 8,888,759 tons.

In 1898 it was 16,239,000 tons.

In 1901 it was 28,403,086 tons.

In 1905 it was 44,270,680 tons.

In 1906 it was 51,751,085 tons.

In 1907 it was 58,211,214 net tons, or more than twice as much as the total of 1901 and nearly four times as much as the total of ten years ago.

The history of commerce can furnish no parallel of this record.

The number of vessels passing through the locks was considerably smaller, being only 20,436, as compared with 22,135 in 1906, and with 21,079 for 1905. The tonnage, however, was 44,647,974 for the season of 1907, as against 41,098,224 for 1906 and 26,617,899 tons for 1905, and 21,958,047 for 1900.

These figures, like those for the Detroit river, demonstrate the rapid increase in the size of the vessels engaged in the lake traffic. Their average tonnage has doubled since 1890. The average for 1905 was 1,889 net tons. The maximum carrying capacity has increased from 7,000 tons in 1895 to 25,000 in 1907.

The total lake commerce for the season of 1907 was 10 per cent larger than in 1906, and 20 per cent larger than in 1905. The increase is due mainly to larger ore and coal shipments, although the movement of grain and miscellaneous merchandise, including lumber and flour, exceeded any previous year.

Total of Shipments.

The total of shipments reached 82,357,019 tons, of which 40,727,972 gross tons were iron ore from the Mesaba and other Lake Superior mines.

Duluth shipped 13,327,257 tons. Two Harbors, 8,051,328 tons; Superior, 7,231,074 tons; Escanaba, 5,584,168 tons; Ashland, 3,395,574 tons; Marquette, 1,699,845 tons, and Presque Isle, 1,257,731 tons.

The three neighboring towns at the western end of Lake Superior—Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors—which are practically one community, and have a common interest, ship more freight than any other port in the world, their combined total for last year exceeding that of London, New York, Hamburg, Liverpool, Antwerp, Marseilles or any other of the world's greatest commercial centers.

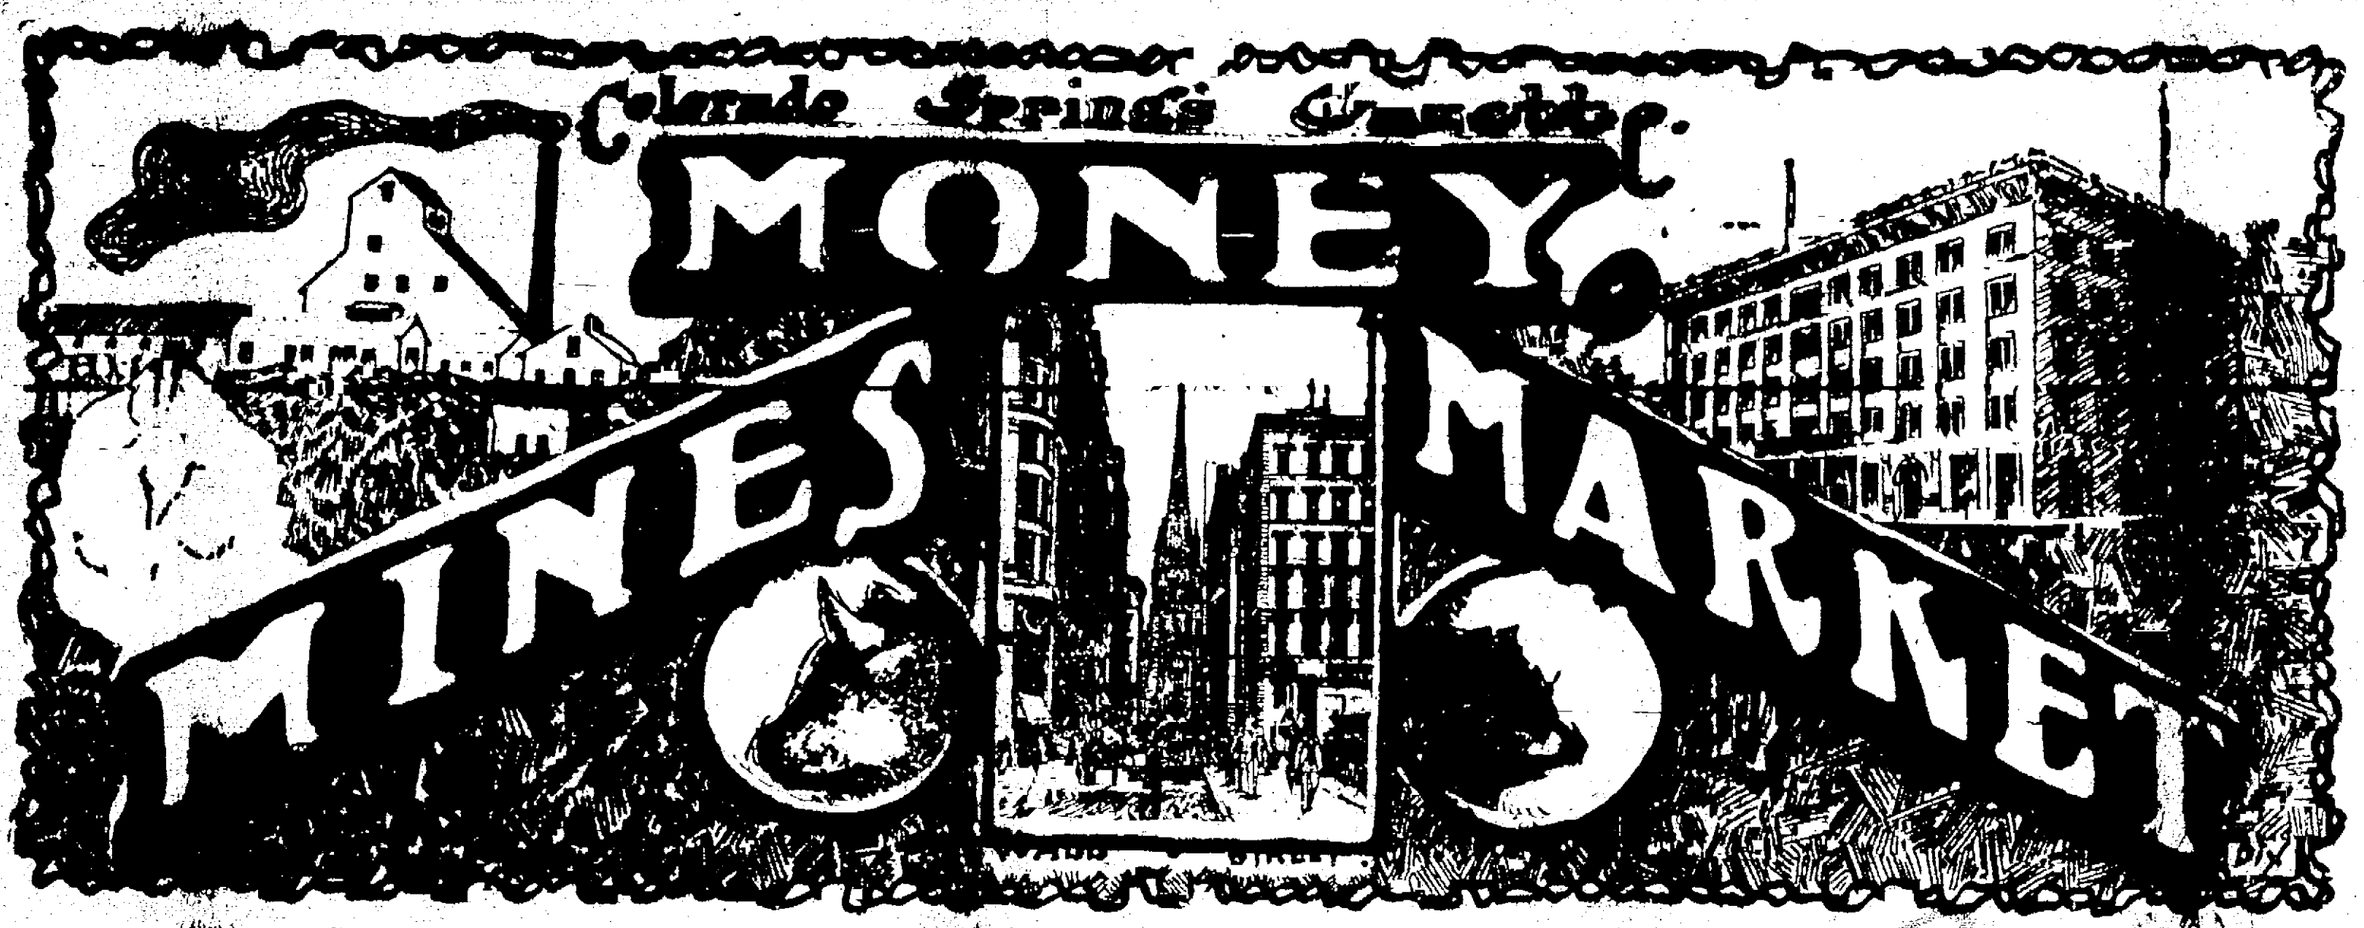
The shipments of grain included 53,549,685 bushels of wheat, compared with 47,726,778 during the season of 1906. The shipments of corn were 44,355,990 bushels, as against 43,531,546, most of it being from Chicago. The shipments of barley showed a decrease of 26 per cent. The shipments of flour were slightly below those for the preceding season and amounted to 14,848,870 barrels. The shipments of lumber amounted to 1,807,570 feet, a remarkable decline as compared with 1906 and 1905, and a decrease of 42 per cent since 1901, which shows that the lumber supply in the territory contiguous to the great lakes is rapidly becoming exhausted.

THE EFFECTS OF CIGARETTE SMOKING

From Physical Culture Magazine.

Dr. Marden, in Success, has this to say to the boy beginning the use of the cigarette: "The whole tendency of the cigarette nicotine poison in the youth is to arrest development. It is fatal to all normal functions. It blights and blasts both health and morals. It not only ruins the faculties, but it unbalances the mind, as well. Many of the most pitiful cases of insanity in our asylums are cigarette fiends. It creates abnormal appetites, strange longings, undefined desires, discontent, uneasiness, nervousness, irritability, and, in many, an almost irresistible inclination to crime. In fact, the moral depravity which follows the cigarette habit is something frightful—lying, cheating, impurity, loss of moral courage and manhood, a complete dropping of life's standards all along the line, are its general results."

Magistrate Crane, of New York city, says: "Ninety-nine out of a hundred boys between the ages of 10 and 17 years, who come before me charged with crime, have their fingers disfigured by yellow cigarette stains. I do not care to pose as a reformer, but it is my opinion that cigarettes will do more than liquor to ruin boys. When you have arraigned before you boys who are hopelessly deaf through the excessive use of cigarettes, boys who have stolen their [illegible] things, boys who absolutely refuse to work, who do nothing but [illegible] and [illegible] you cannot help seeing that there is [illegible] cause, and a [illegible] part of it is [illegible] crime is, to my mind, chiefly to be [illegible] the deadly [illegible] There is [illegible] in this [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] seems to [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] Dr. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]



GOOD FIND REPORTED

RICH VEIN ENCOUNTERED ON THE STAR CLAIM.

Compromise May Be Effected Between Jennie Sample Management and Mrs. Cone —Big Tonnage.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, March 7.—The American Mining company, operating a lease on the Star claim of the Commonwealth company, is reported to have cut the vein which is producing ore for Chase and associates on the Arequa Savage on the east slope of Beacon hill. The vein is reported to be well defined, strong and of liberal dimensions, and was uncovered at a depth of 250 feet. The assays secured by the American Mining company are very good and this company during the week sent out its first consignment of ore consisting of a car lot. The ore will likely give returns ranging between $28 and $30 in gold to the ton.

The Arequa Savage has opened up some nice ore and is making shipments more or less irregular, owing largely to the fact that considerable development work is in progress. This lease was unable for several months to get into the lower workings on account of bad air, but a connection has recently been made and now no bad effects are apparent. Beginning this month this lease will likely produce more ore than it has ever done, and the values obtainable are much better than the average grade, and are reported to be of from $40 to $50.

There is another rumor floating about to the effect that a compromise is trying to be effected between the Jennie Sample management and Mrs. Anna Cone of Canon City, with a view of stopping all litigation, and effecting a consolidation of the properties. What the result is, no one but those directly interested know. It is presumed that if the properties could be consolidated it would be a great proposition, and beneficial to all concerned. It was only recently that the Jennie Sample ground was leased, and some work is now being done on the ground. It is stated on what is believed to be good authority that the rich shoot of ore, which has produced many hundred thousand dollars in the Ophir, is now dipping into the Grace claim adjoining, and which is owned by the Jennie Sample company. If the consolidation could be made, the ore would undoubtedly be mined from the Ophir shaft.

The Ophir and Jennie Sample companies are now at loggerheads, and the question as to the ownership of valuable ore, and the apex of certain veins is in the courts. In the preliminary battle, Mrs. Cone was victorious, but the case has not been settled by any means.

The heavy tonnage from the Cripple Creek district continues unabated, despite a little inclement weather. The ore-hauling firms are buying more horses and putting on more crews and wagons, but so far are behind in getting the ore to the railroads, who are having a hard time in supplying cars to get the ore to the mills at Florence and Colorado City. March will without doubt be the heaviest month in several years insofar as gross tonnage is concerned. There is a large amount of low grade being sent out, and much of a higher grade.

BIG TUNNEL PROJECT

GOLDEN GLORY BORE TO OPEN IMPORTANT SECTION.

Veins From Which Millions Have Been Extracted Will Be Cut—Georgetown Enterprise.

GEORGETOWN, Colo., March 7.—One of the big tunnel propositions of the Georgetown district which is to receive attention in no small way during the next few months, is the Golden Glory, situated on Saxon mountain. During the past few weeks a number of the directors have spent several days in camp in making an examination of the holdings, with a view of enlarging the scope of operations. Now comes the announcement that within a very short time a huge compressor plant will be installed to facilitate the work, and as funds have been pledged for a continued campaign of work, it will not be a great while until unusual activity will be manifest at the seat of operations. The Golden Glory Tunnel and Mining company control a series of veins traversing Saxon mountain, a section of undisturbed richness, as is evidenced from the millions that have been produced in the past 35 years in that locality. The bore, which is in a distance of 700 feet, has already been cleaned out and retimbered, while the grade of six per cent has been reduced to three per cent. A number of veins have been intersected during the progress of performing the work, and no drifting was ever performed. It is now stated that the tunnel is to be driven steadily for the cutting of the veins lying ahead many of which have produced heavily from adjoining ground.

The first vein to be reached that is considered of any great importance is known as the Belcher-Hudson, which has surrendered in excess of $1,500,000, while the ground has practically only been scratched. From that time forward extensions of such famous producers as the American Sisters, Millington and Jo Reynolds will eventually be tapped. At the time the last named is reached the tunnel will have been advanced for approximately 10,000 feet.

The holdings of the Golden Glory company are surrounded by such rich mines as the Magnet, with $1,000,000 to its credit, the Saxon, with $200,000; the Federal, with $75,000; the Saxon Extension, with $50,000; the American Sisters, with $2,150,000; the Dictatic, with $500,000; the Millington, with $500,000; the Chocraw, with $50,000; while not a great way distant lies the Jo Reynolds, with a production in excess of $1,000,000.

On Griffith mountain, to the west, lies such famous producers as the East and West Griffith, the combined output of which exceeds $1,500,000; the Capital mines where such large and rich discoveries have been made during the past two years, and from which a heavy production is being made at the present time.

There seems to be little question concerning the extension of the Colorado Central-Allunde vein system on through Saxon mountain. The Comet is an extension of the Colorado Central, with a $10,000,000 production. The Aetna is an extension of the Comet, which has $1,000,000 to its credit. The Lamartine is an extension of the Aetna, and has $5,000,000 to its credit. In order to reach the Lamartine, Saxon mountain must be traversed, and miners and prospectors state unqualifiedly that the vein system remains intact across the mineral zone. The Golden Glory tunnel is designed both as a mining and as a transportation tunnel.

LAST CHANCE LEASERS

SECURE ORE OF EXCEPTIONALLY HIGH GRADE.

Two Out of Ten Operators on Property Are Sacking Riches. Others in Good Ore.

RAWHIDE, Nev., March 7.—There are ten sets of leasers at work in Last Chance claim and much progress is being made in development. Two leasers are sacking high-grade ore and three or four others are in rock that is very rich in quality.

Last Chance, which is especially well located, being in close relation to Poor Boy, The Hoodlums and Red Top, was recently purchased by the Rawhide Mining company. Its vessel is A. A. Good of Goldfield, who is identified with St. Ives there.

Mr. Good, who is a practical mining man, says he is satisfied that in Last Chance he has a mine and he intends to start work at once on not only an open cut. He will bring a plant from Goldfield immediately, consisting of a hoist and an assay office and will put a few men to work on contract as soon as same can be secured. This will make the stake in the parent wheel.

On Rainbow Hill, the great thing for which all have been looking has been struck at last. The properties there will all go on advance of sale in several lots of thousands, if not a few, for they have struck a ledge running from thirty to forty feet wide the values in which are heavy. This ledge is admitted to stamp the camp as a permanent one. Telegrams were sent to operators in Reno and a large rush is expected here in a day or so as the result of the dissemination of this news. The strike adjoins Lillagator, and the best of the Balboa Hill properties.

STOCK PRICES HIGHER

MARKET BREAKS INTO PERIOD OF ANIMATION.

Close Is Strong at the Top Level of Prices—Powerful Influences at Work for Betterment.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The stock market broke into animation today with a comprehensive uplift of prices. There was a disposition to attribute the demand still to professional sources for the most part, the short interest having become increasingly uneasy with the power of resistance shown by the market through the week. News of conditions in business and trade, on the contrary, did not indicate any marked change for the recent moved results but from a close of the market gave rise of possibilities to some reports that were current of impressive contemplation by powerful influences to work a betterment in conditions.

The coincidence of the presence in the city of several presidents of large railroad systems of the country was supposable for a sudden given to one of these reports. This was to the effect that a proposition was to be made to railroad executives on the part of the principal railroad companies in control for an agreement on their part to maintain wages of labor on their systems if they shall be allowed by the interstate commerce commission to make an increase in the general rates in the rate of freight charges. The enormous changes in net results to follow a change of a fraction of a mill in the freight charge for conveying one ton a mile on the railroads of the country have often been commented upon and illustrate the importance which such an adjustment would have.

If any official confirmation of this report there was none. The same was true of an assertion that the anthracite railroads had worked out a plan for meeting the commodity clause of the Hepburn rate law, which goes into effect on May 1, and which had threatened serious embarrassments to coal companies.

The announcement that the Knickerbocker Trust company would be permitted to resume business was a favorable factor. The collection in the official discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany and a decline in the discount rate in Paris witnessed the relaxing tendency of the world's money markets. So did the Bank of England statement, although the supplementary statement of the actual condition of the banks on Friday evening and of the institutions outside the clearing house had to be looked to to trace the improvement rather than the regular statement of averages. The increase in loans showed by the latter evidently reflected the effect of last week's operations, the actual loan item on Friday night showing a sharp contraction. The market closed very strong at the top level of prices.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $1,845,000. United States 2s, registered, have declined ¾, and the 2s, coupon, and 2s, ½ per cent on call during the week.

WHEAT MARKET BREAKS

MAY OPTION SHOWS TWO-CENT DECLINE.

Fine Crop Prospects and Bearish News From Abroad Force Prices Down—Corn and Oats Dull.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The wheat market broke heavily today because of fine crop prospects in this country and bearish news from abroad. At the close, May wheat was off 1¾@2¼; corn was ¾@¾ lower; oats were off ¼; provisions were 5 to 25 lower.

The market opened weak because of reports of heavy shipments from Russian and Danubian ports and large offerings from Argentina commission houses, and it broke still heavily when it was reported that the crop in this country was in good condition and that present prospects are favorable. Shorts also were active sellers. Many of them were forced to cover by the late advance, and they were again putting out their lines for the distant months. The cash demand was at a standstill and receipts were reported as being liberal at all points in the southwest. May wheat opened ⅛@¼ to ¼@⅜ lower, at 95¾ to 96½, sold between 96¼@97⅛ and 93¾, and closed weak, at 95¾.

Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 234,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 466,000 bushels, against 564,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year.

The corn market was dull and prices declined more from lack of support and in sympathy with wheat than because of any bearish news. The close was easy. May corn opened unchanged to ⅝ higher, at 63¾ to 63⅞, sold between 63¾@64⅛ and 62⅝, and closed at 63¾@63⅞. Local receipts were 370 cars, with none of contract grade.

The oats market was dull, and there was a general lack of support, which weakened prices, although there was no especial pressure exerted. May oats opened a shade lower, at 53½, sold up to 53⅝ and closed at 53⅜. Local receipts were 204 cars.

The provisions market was steady at the opening on good buying by eastern speculators and higher prices for live hogs. At the close, May pork was 25 lower, at $12.00; lard was down 7½, at $7.87½; ribs were 3 to 7½ lower, at $8.77½ to $8.50.

FROM SCOTINSKY TO SCOTT.

One of the enthusiastic members of the red flag fraternity of New York is a baker. His earnest arguments in favor of socialism attracted the attention of some men who sat near the group of which he was one in an East Side Hungarian coffee house, and one of the party asked to be presented to the eloquent youth. He was much surprised to hear that the baker's name was Scott. "You are a Russian or a Hungarian, are you not?" the visitor said. "I wonder how you came by that name?" "I got that at Ellis Island," he said, "and must thank my brother for it. He came from the West to receive me, and told me, the first thing, that if I wanted to get along I must change part of my name. He is still burdened with Scotinsky. I followed his advice and cut off the 'insky,' and my friends soon put on the extra 't.' Charles Scott is certainly a better name than Charles Scotinsky in this country, but I have not succeeded in convincing that man," pointing to a white-bearded man near by. "He has my old name."

"And who is he?"

"That's my father."

SPOILING DAMASCUS.

Damascus, said to be the oldest of living cities, is losing its character. A Belgian company is cutting through it with an electric street railway and is sprinkling electric lights in its ancient streets. The motive power for these installations is derived from the harnessing of the river fifteen miles off. Three and a half miles of the street railway are already completed. Traffic on the Mezar road, which in summer may reach to Mecca, is of a convenient entrepot in the [illegible] department of the wool-growing [illegible]
